Cockroach Poker is a bluffing game where players pass off pesky critters to each other by successfully bluffing others or catching them in their bluffs. In Cockroach Poker, you will secretly pass a card to another player and claim it's a certain critter – truthfully or not. That player can either make a guess on whether you're telling the truth or bluffing, or they can pass it on to someone else with their own claim. If they guess wrong, they keep the card. But if they guess right, you have to keep the card! Cards you have to keep are placed down face-up in front of you. The game ends when one player has four cards of the same animal face-up or runs out of cards – that player loses, and everyone else wins!
