In this game, all players receive a game board with pictures of different empty rooms in the house of one of 6 different animals. Players take turns pulling room picture tiles from a bag that show an activity going on in one of the rooms. If the room picture tile belongs to your animal's house, you get to place it on the matching room space on your game board (but notice how the picture tile is slightly different from your room space and shows something going on in the room!) Who will be the first player to fill their animal's house with activities going on in all the rooms?
