WORKSHOP HOSTED BY:

EVENT OVERVIEW:

Why are the upcoming UN Climate Negotiations important? The twenty-first session of the conference of the parties (COP21) to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change will be held in Paris in December 2015. COP21 is considered to be a pivotal moment in international climate negotiations, with the objective to achieve, for the first time in over 20 years, a binding and universal agreement on climate, from all the nations of the world.

The Canadian negotiating team in Paris will be representing a re-elected or newly elected federal government. Alongside other government and non-governmental leaders, they will be faced with the challenge of crafting a position that satisfies diverse domestic interests while addressing the need to substantially limit future greenhouse gas emissions and adapt to increasingly severe climate-induced impacts, both in Canada and abroad.

This workshop will investigate Canadian political positions and policy options in the context of global governance of climate change, as well as the role of Canadian researchers and universities in contributing to public discourse on climate change.

Please Note: This event will follow the Chatham House Rule, whereby participants are free to use the information received, but neither the identity nor the affiliation of the speaker(s), nor that of any other participant, may be revealed.

EVENT CONTACTS: Simon Dalby & Joanne Weston (Balsillie School of International Affairs), and Daniel Scott & Sarah Brown (the Interdisciplinary Centre on Climate Change at the University of Waterloo). ## AGENDA

Thursday, March 26th - CIGI SIGNATURE LECTURE

7:00 – 9:00 p.m. CIGI Campus Auditorium	CIGI Signature Lecture: “Big World, Small Planet” Johan Rockström, Executive Director, Stockholm Resilience Centre In this CIGI Signature Lecture, sustainability expert Johan Rockström explores how we as a species have passed the tipping point of nature's ability to accommodate for the societal behaviours (and byproducts thereof) required to sustain the global economy. The resulting environmental impacts and disasters that we are seeing illustrate the need for fundamental shifts in our development priorities and the way economy intersects with environment — shifts that are necessary to support the big world we have created on this small planet.
