

Women in Computing Colouring Page

Beatrice ("Trixie") Worsley was a computer scientist and professor born on October 18, 1921. She taught and researched at the University of Toronto and Queen's University in Ontario and was the first female computer scientist in Canada.

Beatrice Worsley sitting at the Ferut in the University of Toronto's Computation Centre, circa 1952-1958. (Photo courtesy of Alva Worsley.)

