Objectives:

This course introduces the key concepts of international trade. We will develop models that allow us to analyze whether there are gains from trade, the determinants behind the patterns of trade, the implications of trade for domestic and foreign economic conditions, and how governments can manipulate the patterns of trade. In addition we will look at trade institutions and discuss articles from the popular press.

Required Readings:

- Feenstra and Taylor. International Trade, 2nd edition, Worth Publishers, 2010.
 - Note: additional quizzes and exercises are available on the textbook website: http://bcs.worthpublishers.com/feenstrataylor2_intltrade
- Occasional supplementary readings from the popular press will also be posted.

Recommended Readings:

- Krugman and Obstfeld. International Economics: Theory and Policy.
- The Economist
- Trade Related Blogs:
 - <http://rodrik.typepad.com/> (Dani Rodrik)
 - <http://economistsview.typepad.com/> (Mark Thoma)

Prerequisites:

Econ 101 and 102

You will be expected to use simple algebra, interpret and manipulate graphs, and think abstractly about issues and policies

My Expectations:

- You will come to class and you will participate
- You will read the required readings
- You will stay on top of the material
- You will complete the problem sets
- You may want to do the practise questions in the textbook and on the textbook's website: <http://www.mhhe.com/appleyard7e>

Method of Evaluation:

2 Problem Sets date TBD – 10% of final grade
Midterm Examination: Monday Oct 31st (in class) - 30% of final grade
Final Examination: date TBD - 60% of final grade

NOTE: Students who write the midterm exam but do better on the final exam will have half of the weight of the midterm shifted to the final. Thus your final mark would be 10% problem sets, 15% midterm, and 75% final.

Absence from Exams:

Failure to write an exam results in a grade of zero. Exceptions will only be made under the most extreme circumstances and with a written note.

If you miss the midterm due to illness or other excused absence the 30% weight will be added to the final examination.

Deferred Final Economics Exam Normally, a student who has been ill (documentation required) and missed the scheduled final exam MUST petition the Department of Economics Undergraduate Office within 48 hours to write the Departmental Deferred Examination. If the student has failed to write the Departmental Deferred Examination, the student will automatically receive a grade of 0% for the missed deferred final examination. Please download and fill out the Special Deferred Exam Request Form and attach the supporting documentation before submitting to the Instructor for departmental approval. Due to illness on the day of the exam (and not that you are unprepared), you are given the deferred privilege. Please be ready to write the deferred exam on short notice.
