Course description:

This course is an introductory survey of modern labour economics. It begins by developing theoretical static models of labour supply and demand. This theory is then combined to analyse equilibrium under various product and labour market structural assumptions. In conclusion, the course explores what insights this theory offers in the examination of relative wage outcomes and unemployment observed in real-world labour markets.

While not formally required, some knowledge of intermediate microeconomic theory, including indifference curves, budget constraints, isocost curves, and isoquants will prove helpful, as is knowledge of basic descriptive statistics and regression analysis. Students lacking this background are encouraged to spend extra time becoming familiar with this material, including reviewing the appendix material on consumer choice theory and regression analysis in the textbook.

Evaluation:

There will be two term tests, which will be held during the scheduled class time on October 27 and November 17 in RCH 209. The final exam will be scheduled by the Registrar’s Office. Final grades will equal the maximum of two formula grades: (i) 0.25a + 0.25b + 0.5c; and (ii) 0.25 * max(a, b) + 0.75c, where a, b, and c are the first term test, second term test, and final exam percentage grades respectively.

The term tests will consist of a combination of true/false/explain and short answer questions. The final exam will include both of these types of questions, as well as an essay question, which will ask you to discuss a specific aspect of an empirical research paper that you have chosen from a list to be distributed midway through the term. Should you miss a term test, for any reason, a grade of zero will be assigned. Should you miss the final exam, a deferred can be written.
Details on requesting a deferred exam, can be found here: https://uwaterloo.ca/economics/undergraduate/resources-and-policies/deferred-final-exam-policy Note that requests for deferred exams must be received within 48 hours of the scheduled exam time.

Academic Integrity: Academic Integrity: In order to maintain a culture of academic integrity, members of the University of Waterloo are expected to promote honesty, trust, fairness, respect and responsibility. See the UWaterloo Academic Integrity webpage and the Arts Academic Integrity webpage for more information.

Discipline: A student is expected to know what constitutes academic integrity, to avoid committing academic offences, and to take responsibility for his/her actions. A student who is unsure whether an action constitutes an offence, or who needs help in learning how to avoid offences (e.g., plagiarism, cheating) or about rules for group work/collaboration should seek guidance from the course professor, academic advisor, or the Undergraduate Associate Dean. When misconduct has been found to have occurred, disciplinary penalties will be imposed under Policy 71 Student Discipline. For information on categories of offenses and types of penalties, students should refer to Policy 71 – Student Discipline. For typical penalties check Guidelines for the Assessment of Penalties.

Grievances: A student who believes that a decision affecting some aspect of his/her university life has been unfair or unreasonable may have grounds for initiating a grievance. Read Policy 70 – Student Petitions and Grievances, Section 4. When in doubt, please be certain to contact the departments administrative assistant who will provide further assistance.

Appeals: A decision made or penalty imposed under Policy 70 - Student Petitions and Grievances (other than a petition) or Policy 71 – Student Discipline may be appealed if there is a ground. A student who believes he/she has a ground for an appeal should refer to Policy 72 – Student Appeals.

Accommodation for Students with Disabilities: Note for students with disabilities: The AccessAbility Services office, located on the first floor of the Needles Hall extension (1401), collaborates with all academic departments to arrange appropriate accommodations for students with disabilities without compromising the academic integrity of the curriculum. If you require academic accommodations to lessen the impact of your disability, please register with the AS office at the beginning of each academic term.

Mental Health Support: All of us need a support system. The faculty and staff in Arts encourage students to seek out mental health supports if they are needed.
