Calendar Description

This course offers an introduction to the theory of market based economies. Topics include consumer choice; production; price and output under perfect and imperfect competition; price discrimination and two part pricing; vertical and horizontal firm boundaries and integration; and market structure.

Course Objectives

This course provides an extension on the microeconomic concepts developed in Econ 101 using more advanced mathematical and graphical methods. The main objective of the course is to understand how people make rational decisions within the general framework of market system. In the first part of the course, we will study how consumers make choices given their constraints of budget. In the second part of the course, we focus on how producers optimize production activities guided by the principle of profit maximization. And, in the last part of the course, we study how these two groups interact in the market by combining consumer and producer choices together. Different types of market considered are perfect competition, monopoly, oligopoly and monopolistic competition. Topics of discussion include the theory of consumer behavior, the theory of the firms, different market structures and the role of government.

After completion of this course, students are expected to learn the general theoretical framework of microeconomics, understand the model based approach to study rational decision making processes of consumers and producers, and can apply these microeconomic principles and tools to analyze and resolve real life problems.

Institutional-required statements for undergraduate course outlines approved by Senate Undergraduate Council, April 14, 2009

Academic Integrity: In order to maintain a culture of academic integrity, members of the University of Waterloo are expected to promote honesty, trust, fairness, respect and responsibility. See the UWaterloo Academic Integrity webpage and the Arts Academic Integrity webpage for more information.

Discipline: A student is expected to know what constitutes academic integrity, to avoid committing academic offences, and to take responsibility for his/her actions. A student who is unsure whether an action constitutes an offence, or who needs help in learning how to avoid offences (e.g., plagiarism, cheating) or about “rules” for group work/collaboration should seek guidance from the course professor, academic advisor, or the Undergraduate Associate Dean. When misconduct has been found to have occurred, disciplinary penalties will be imposed under Policy 71 – Student Discipline. For information on categories of offenses and types of penalties, students should refer to Policy 71 - Student Discipline. For typical penalties check Guidelines for the Assessment of Penalties.

Grievance: A student who believes that a decision affecting some aspect of his/her university life has been unfair or unreasonable may have grounds for initiating a grievance. Read Policy 70 - Student Petitions and Grievances, Section 4. When in doubt, please be certain to contact the department’s administrative assistant who will provide further assistance.

Appeals: A decision made or penalty imposed under Policy 70 - Student Petitions and Grievances (other than a petition) or Policy 71 - Student Discipline may be appealed if there is a ground. A student who believes he/she has a ground for an appeal should refer to Policy 72 - Student Appeals.

Accommodation for Students with Disabilities

Note for students with disabilities: The AccessAbility Services office, located on the first floor of the Needles Hall extension (1401), collaborates with all academic departments to arrange appropriate accommodations for students with disabilities without compromising the academic integrity of the curriculum. If you require academic accommodations to lessen the impact of your disability, please register with the AS office at the beginning of each academic term.
