Power and Energy Systems: Innovation Meets a Growing Industry

Meet tomorrow's leaders in power systems and control, high-voltage technologies, and energy generation, conversion and storage at the Waterloo-ECE Open House. Engage our academic staff and student researchers in a discussion of R&D and technical problems facing your company.

Highlights: The Open House is a half-day forum dedicated to linking industry with leading-edge research in power and energy systems technologies. These technologies span the range from new materials, to systems and control of smart grids, energy transmission, power electronics, and photovoltaics. Local funding agencies specializing in industry/academic collaborations will be on site to assist in making your match a reality.
