Subject: Library Update: Fall Instruction and Access to Resources
Date: July 29, 2020 2:53:10 PM

Hello everyone,

Hope you are all doing well! I am reaching out as we are approaching the Fall semester to update you on a few key services (for instruction and collections) that are available.

Library instruction sessions

- The library has been busy preparing for the Fall instruction for library workshops. Working with our Library's Instructional Design team a variety of online modules (that can be loaded into LEARN) have been created for asynchronous learning and to engage students with the content.
 - View our Online Learning Object Repository
 - Topics include: Finding e-books, understanding differences between scholarly/popular resources, peer-review, conducting academic research, Boolean searching, citation (MLA 8th edition), reading effectively and efficiently, and many other options.
- ENGL 109 - this is the most frequent English course (with a variety of sections) that our data shows to call for library instruction. As a result, I have been working with our Library Instructional Design team and have developed modules that can be incorporated into LEARN and students are able to work through the modules and interact with the content asynchronously.
 - Topics include: introduction to their librarian, finding e-books, understanding differences between scholarly/popular resources, peer-review, conducting academic research, and Boolean searching.
 - Other topics can be included or changed out if required.
- For any courses that would like library instruction, further assistance can be added such as joining discussion boards for the week of library instruction and attending synchronous discussions.

If you would like to view the modules/discuss library instruction options/or are wanting library instruction for the Fall, please feel free to contact me.

Books or other library materials for your research or teaching

- Available to review syllabus to find access/potentially acquire readings (please contact me as soon as possible if you require this).
- Available to discuss/direct to library contacts for topics such as open education resources, copyright, and other request and inquires.

Please feel free to contact me with any library related questions or inquires that you may have.

All the best,
Lauren
