DISCOVER YOUR STORY AT UNITED
Welcome to United College.

As an academic institution, United College delivers programming in a number of related areas. We are the campus leads for Indigenous Studies, Canadian Studies, Indigenous Entrepreneurship and Human Rights. We share in the delivery of the International Development program and the major in Religious Studies. We also teach social entrepreneurship through GreenHouse, our nationally recognized innovation incubator for students.

"United College provides an oasis of community on the campus of this large and very dynamic university. It’s a place where you can relax and feel at home. It’s a place where you can contribute and make a difference. It’s a place to make lifelong friends. Our students and staff love this college. We think you will, too!"

COMMUNITIES TAILORED FOR YOU

Living Learning Communities are designed to help first-year students get the most out of their university experience, both academically and socially. These programs are structured to engage students more deeply with their subject matter while forming lasting friendships along the way.

ENVIRONMENT
Participate in programs just for students in the Faculty of Environment, take study skills workshops organized by upper-year peer leaders, volunteer for a community outreach project, get to know your professors outside the classroom, and connect with your friends down the hall to walk to Environment classes in less than five minutes.

ETES-VOUS FRANCOPHILE?
We have a home for you! Be one of 18 students who live on La Bastille, our French-language floor. You don’t have to be fluent, you just have to love the language and culture!

HUMAN RIGHTS AND LAW
Whatever your major, if you have an interest in human rights and law, this LLC will connect you with other students who share your interests.

MATH FARM STUDENTS
Live with your peers in a community designed to offer an academic and social network that supports your classes and the unique needs of your program.

WATERLOO INDIGENOUS STUDENT RESIDENCE
Join our live-in Indigenous program which supports the unique needs of Indigenous students and allows you to develop social networks that can help you succeed.

WOMEN IN ENGINEERING
Live with your Engineering peers in a community designed to support the unique academic and social networking needs of women in engineering.
LESS THAN 10 MINUTES AWAY FROM CLASS!

WE SUPPORT YOU
Living at United College is like having one big family! Dons, peer leaders, professors, and staff are always ready to support you!!

THE POSSIBILITIES ARE ENDLESS
Spark your passion, connect with peer leaders and mentors from United College, and join students from all faculties looking to make sustainable, social, and environmental changes for future generations.

“`I really love living here. A bunch of the girls and I became super close. We eat together, we hang out together. We formed a really strong bond.”
