Explore and celebrate your musical passions.

Experience the many ways in which music is meaningful in today’s world. Music is a flexible, Bachelor of Arts program that combines core courses in theory, performance, and history, with courses addressing questions at the vital intersections between music and other areas such as technology, film, global cultures, and psychology.

Conrad Grebel University College is home to the University of Waterloo’s Department of Music and offers instruction in about 20 instruments as well as voice.

You’ll find a supportive environment for majoring in music or you can pursue a variety of different program options that combine music with other subjects. As a UWaterloo student, you are invited to take a music course, sing in a choir, play in an instrumental ensemble, or sign up for a studio lesson, no matter what program you pursue.

WHAT STUDENTS ARE SAYING
“There’s really nothing else I would rather be doing than fully immersing myself in the academic challenge that Music provides. Elective courses like Art Song or Opera have really helped me figure out what I’m most interested in while broadening my horizons for music I hadn’t originally considered!” – Sarah

JOIN AN ENSEMBLE
Participate in four different vocal ensembles, instrumental chamber ensembles, the jazz ensemble, the orchestra, and the Balinese gamelan.
