

Acknowledgments

The papers and profiles appearing in this volume originated as presentations at the Global Mennonite Peacebuilding Conference and Festival held June 9-12, 2016 at Conrad Grebel University College in Waterloo, Ontario. The event was organized and hosted by Conrad Grebel University College. The contributions of co-chairs Marlene Epp and Reina Neufeldt and coordinator Mary Lou Klassen were invaluable. A planning committee, an international advisory committee, Grebel staff, and event sponsors supported the conference. Further information is available at <https://uwaterloo.ca/grebel/events/global-mennonite-peacebuilding-conference-and-festival>.

Global Mennonite Peacebuilding: Exploring Theology, Culture, and Practice was facilitated by The Conrad Grebel Review and the editors of this special issue. Particular thanks are due to authors, peer-reviewers, and managing editor Stephen Jones.

This publication was supported by a grant from the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada.
