

The Many Faces of Heritage:

Growing a Community of Practice and Teaching

An Interdisciplinary Colloquium Convened by the University of Waterloo Heritage Resources Centre

We invite you to discover and share common interests in the study, teaching, and practice of all aspects of heritage conservation, planning and management at the University of Waterloo and beyond.

Heritage has evolved from a focus on the preservation of ancient built environments to an interdisciplinary field covering issues as wide as land-use planning, lived cultural expressions, architecture, natural areas conservation, archaeology, and digital media story-telling. Increasingly also, critical heritage approaches come to the fore, touching on questions such as politics and power relationships, social justice, race and contested narratives, as well as Indigenous reconciliation. The community of interest in heritage has spread far and wide.

Academics and professional practitioners from across the greater heritage community will come together to highlight the latest interdisciplinary heritage research and ideas, explore collaborative opportunities, consider emerging challenges in heritage practice, and help foster the growth of a community of shared interest centred at the University of Waterloo.

The information and advice gathered from the colloquium will be used by the Heritage Resources Centre to guide the development of a stronger community of heritage practice, research and teaching centred at the University of Waterloo. The Heritage Resources Centre will also use the collected ideas and insights to explore the development of new educational opportunities for University of Waterloo students and professionals pursuing careers in various aspects of heritage conservation, planning and management.

Presenters

- Dr. Janice Barry, Assistant Professor, School of Planning, University of Waterloo
- Dr. Anne Bordeleau, O'Donovan Director & Associate Professor, School of Architecture, University of Waterloo
- Clara MacCallum Fraser, Executive Director, Shared Path Consultation Initiative
- Kayla Jonas Galvin, Heritage Operations Manager, Archaeological Research Associates & Heritage Resources Centre Board
- Kate Hagerman, Manager, Environmental Planning and Stewardship, Regional Municipality of Waterloo
- Carolyn King, Chair and Co-Founder, Shared Path Consultation Initiative & former Chief, Mississaugas of the Credit First Nation
- Dr. Marcus Letourneau, Managing Principal & Senior Heritage Planner, Letourneau Heritage Consulting Inc. & Heritage Resources Centre Board
- Laura Loney, Project Manager and Team Coordinator, Cultural Heritage Division, Archaeological Services Inc.
- Fred McGarry, Executive Director, Centre for Community Mapping & Heritage Resources Centre Executive
- Dr. Robert Park, Associate Dean of Arts, Cooperative Education and Planning & Professor, Department. of Anthropology, University of Waterloo
- Dr. Robert Shipley, Past Director, Heritage Resources Centre, University of Waterloo

Date & Time: April 29, 2019, 8:30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m.

Venue: Columbia A&B Rooms, Federation Hall, Main Campus, University of Waterloo, 200 Avenue West, Waterloo, ON.

Registration: Admission is FREE but registration is required. Please register online by April 18, 11:55pm at: <https://www.ticketfi.com/event/3131/the-many-faces-of-heritage-growing-a-community-of-practice-and-teaching?>

Lunch & Coffee Breaks: Included with online registration. Limited on-site registration is possible but does not include meals.

Details & Contacts: <https://uwaterloo.ca/heritage-resources-centre/news>

Financial support for the colloquium is generously provided by:

UW Faculty of Environment | UW School of Planning
St. Jerome's University | Archaeological Services Inc. (ASI)

Heritage Resources Centre
Centre des ressources du patrimoine