PACS 326.001/RS 380.001: Religion and Peacebuilding
Winter 2021

Class Time: Wednesdays 10:30 a.m.-11:50 a.m.

Instructor: Nathan C. Funk
Office Hours: by appointment

Email: nfunk@uwaterloo.ca

Course Description:
Paradoxically, religion has the potential both to unite and to divide. Although media sensationalism may sometimes over-represent the role of religion in conflict there is no denying the reality that, for many people participating in social and political disputes, religious stakes are involved. There are reasons for the common admonition to avoid talking about religion and politics with new acquaintances and distant relatives. That said, most religious people are quite consistent in affirming that they value peace, and some of the most famous peacebuilders in the world have been in some sense religious peacebuilders. The actions and visions of such religious or “faith-inspired” peacebuilders have resonated with people within as well as beyond their core faith communities, providing grounds for reflection on the role not just of religion but also of spirituality in peace work and social justice advocacy.
Starting from the premise that peace is a widely shared and yet variably defined value of the world’s major religious traditions, this course provides a framework for academic and personal exploration of religiously and spiritually motivated peacebuilding and social justice advocacy. By exposing students to writings of contemporary peace researchers and to examples of religiously motivated peacebuilding from several different religious traditions, the course seeks to stimulate active engagement with the following questions:

- What are some basic teachings about peace in major world religions (e.g., Christianity, Islam, Judaism, Buddhism, and Hinduism)? What is the role of interpretation? How do conceptions of peace differ within as well as between religions, and what are the practical implications? And how do distinctively religious perspectives on peace differ from and/or complement secular perspectives?
- If most religious traditions affirm peace as a social value and as an important condition of the spiritual life, how is it that religious ideas and identities have sometimes been found to sharpen conflict or to provide cover for more mundane rivalries and ambitions? Why do religious individuals and communities often appear to fall short of their peace-related ideals? How does religion interact with other factors, such as economics or ethnic and national identity, in contemporary conflict situations?
- What types of religious visions and personal commitments are associated with religious peacebuilding and activism for social justice? What are some things that peacebuilders from various traditions have in common?
- What are some of the different practical approaches to religious peacebuilding? What are the relevant methods and organizational forms? And what are some significant cases in which religious peacebuilding has made a difference?
- What role can religious ideas play in efforts to respond to pressing global problems such as war, environmental degradation, poverty, and human rights abuses? Can people with different religious convictions find common ground as they face such challenges – even while continuing to disagree on other matters? And what are some local tasks for religious peacebuilders in our own communities?
- What does religious peacebuilding mean to you? Do you wish to become involved? If so, how?

Course Schedule and Logistics:

This course is scheduled for synchronous delivery for 80 minutes on Wednesdays, from 10:30 a.m. to 11:50 a.m. Our weekly meetings will amount half the usual “contact hours” of a typical university course (with the other half of the hours applied to asynchronous online activities), and will be used to explore questions about course materials and assignments, to discuss major themes, and to engage in learning activities. There is an expectation that all students will attempt to participate (to the best of their ability) at this time.

The course will use the WebEx platform, and each week students will be expected to log in at the start of class. Breakout groups will be organized periodically during class to enable small group discussions and/or exercises. Students may log into class each week on the link provided in LEARN, using also the designated meeting ID and passcode.

Students should anticipate spending about twenty or thirty minutes each week posting on and responding to the course’s discussion forums. Note also that synchronous course sessions will be recorded for the benefit of students who may be absent from class for an unexpected reason, or who are having difficulties related to a time zone difference or limited internet connectivity.
In addition to readings and other materials described in the course schedule below, the instructor will post additional materials in LEARN (e.g., recorded PowerPoint lectures, video or podcast links), usually on a weekly basis. Reviewing these materials is an expected asynchronous learning activity (to be completed whenever possible before the next weekly synchronous session), and should be considered more or less equivalent to in-class activities during a normal term. Consistent and timely processing of these materials will enable the synchronous sessions to function more like a “flipped classroom,” with a greater amount of time dedicated to discussion and other active-learning processes, and less time spent on lectures.

Recording of Course:

Each week’s 80-minute synchronous class session will be recorded so that any student absent (or experiencing technical difficulties) may review the class session at a subsequent time. Students are therefore reminded that their comments during the synchronous session will be recorded and made available only on the LEARN class website. Your instructor is aware that recording can raise concerns that are not typically present for in-class discussions, and each student will be asked in the first class to indicate their agreement to the following two matters.

- First, students will be asked to consent to the class sessions being recorded for the benefit of students whose internet fails or who for some reason cannot participate in class at the designated time;
- Second, students will be asked to agree not to copy, quote, or recirculate comments or discussion posts by other students without that student’s explicit written permission. In this way, we hope to preserve the integrity of the classroom where respectful and honest dialogue and mutual learning can occur without fear of being quoted without consent or misquoted in an inappropriate way.

Students are welcome to turn off voice and/or video if there are times when they do not want their participation in the class recorded. Students who have special concerns related to class session recording are invited to contact the instructor for further discussion.

Course Objectives:

Upon completing PACS 326 students should be able to:

- Describe ways in which religion can contribute to both conflict and peacemaking;
- Differentiate between “religious” and “secular” factors that contribute to present-day conflicts;
- Articulate personal convictions about the role of religion and spirituality in peacebuilding, conflict transformation, reconciliation, and the cultivation of “peace culture”;

Source.
• Discuss significant cases of religious peacebuilding from a number of different settings around the world;
• Identify relevant terms in the religious vocabularies of several world religions for peace, social justice, and reconciliation;
• Identify “peace traditions” and positive examples of peacemaking within multiple religious communities, and describe similarities and differences between approaches to peace and peacemaking;
• Offer explanations for different views that may be found within a particular religion on such issues as religious diversity, peacebuilding, social justice, and human rights;
• Describe notable characteristics of religious peacemakers, including qualities that may distinguish them from other practitioners within the same religious tradition;
• Discuss relevant applications of various religious peacebuilding practices, including nonviolent action/witness, interfaith dialogue, multifaith projects/coalitions, hermeneutics, education/training, mediation, and advocacy for peace, social justice and/or coexistence;
• Discuss the relevance of course topics to personal ethical or spiritual concerns; and
• Develop a proposal for religious peacebuilding in the world today.

Course Requirements and Evaluation Criteria:
1. 10% Discussion Board: Ten percent of your final grade will be based on the quality of your engagement, as expressed through timely and substantive comments (with direct references to readings and other course content, including presentations) posted on a series of discussion forums, as well as through meaningful responses to posts made by classmates.

Five discussion board forums will be active from Week 1 through Week 12; each (including an “Introduce Yourself” forum) will be open for a three-week interval. Expectations for these discussion forums are as follows: a) post at least two original comments (150 words or more) per three-week interval, starting new threads to share your thoughts on specific readings, presentations (including student-produced videos), and/or other course content; and b) offer at least four substantive responses (75 words or more) to threads created by other students before the discussion forum closes. Whenever possible, offer your posts early in the period allotted to a particular discussion forum, so as to enable others to engage and respond to your ideas before the forum closes. Discussion forums will typically open on a Saturday evening and close at the same time three weeks later (as a new discussion board opens for the next three weeks of class).

The timing and coverage of the discussion forums is as follows:
- Forum #1 (“Introduce Yourself”): Week 1 through Week 3;
- Forum #2 (Course Content): Week 1 through Week 3;
- Forum #3: Week 4 through Week 6;
- Forum #4: Week 7 through Week 9;
- Forum #5: Week 9 through Week 12.

Discussion board plus synchronous participation option: Students may also choose to have their weekly engagement evaluated on the basis of “live,” synchronous participation in combination with a reduced expectation for discussion board contributions (one comment and two responses per discussion forum). Participation in synchronous sessions should be consistent, constructive, substantive, and informed by the relevant assigned materials. To pursue this option, send an email message to the instructor no later than Wednesday, January 20.

2. 5% Personal Background and Worldview Exercise: Five percent of your grade will be based on a short, reflective essay (600-900 words) due on Saturday, January 23. In this issue you will describe your personal “relationship with religion and spirituality” and how this relationship influences your thinking about roles of religion in conflict and peacemaking. The goal of this writing assignment is for you to explore the deeper background from which your assumptions, values, and perceptions emerge, so that you can link your personal ideas to formative experiences as well as to your larger family and community backgrounds.

Although there will be no formal presentations associated with this exercise, we will discuss different types of student responses to the assignment. You are likely to find that personal “relationships with religion and spirituality” vary quite widely within the classroom, and that people are coming from many different religious as well as non-religious communities and experiences. A key goal is for us to enhance our awareness of ourselves as people whose ideas, attitudes, and experiences are not purely individual in character, and emerge from a larger context of family and social history. Even if you do not consider yourself to be a religious or spiritual person, please use this as an opportunity to conduct some investigative research into at least two generations of your family history, ideally asking parents and relatives for input and commentary. Identify ways in which experiences with religion shaped your forebears’ values and beliefs, and consider the impact of this legacy (directly or indirectly, as a source of guidance and inspiration or as a set of experiences from which you may differentiate yourself) on your own worldview and assumptions about religion, peace, and conflict.

You may find the following questions helpful as you begin your reflections and your research for this exercise:

- a. What is my personal relationship with religion and spirituality?
- b. How have recent generations within my own family (nuclear or extended) related to religion? What were their attitudes toward religion and its role in community and public life? What traditions and beliefs informed people’s worldviews, values, and daily routines? Have members of my family ever experienced conflict over issues pertaining to religious belief and identity? Discrimination? Have they experienced religion and/or spirituality as a source of peace? Why or why not?
- c. How do I relate to this family history? What personal sense do I make of it, and how does it inform my own understanding of issues under discussion in this class?
- d. Based on my own observations and experiences, what are the “crucial issues” that I believe religion and spirituality need to address during my own lifetime?

3. 15% Video Presentation Assignment: Fifteen percent of your final grade will be derived from an application exercise in which you will create and upload a video presentation that engages key themes from the readings due for a specific week (each week there will be two or three students completing video presentations) by exploring a case that is of interest to you. You may complete this assignment individually or as a member of a small team of two or three students. Your presentation is due in the appropriate LEARN Dropbox at least 24 hours before the relevant synchronous meeting (i.e., Tuesday at 10:30 a.m.) so that other students will have a chance to view it before our shared session.
The video presentation should be appropriately timed (a minimum of 4 to a maximum of 7 minutes for an individual presentation, or 6 to 10 minutes for a team presentation) and substantively engaged with key concepts or topics from the week’s assigned readings. Be sure to signal very clearly the themes or concepts you are engaging (with appropriate references and definitions) and provide enough context and evidence to communicate a clear message to your audience about the case in question. In addition, provide references for external sources you have used to understand the particularities of your case, and conclude with a reflective statement about what you have learned from this exercise and at least one discussion question for the class. In the relevant synchronous class session, you will be expected to offer informal commentary (why you chose the case, and what it means to you) for a minute or two before a broader discussion.

Though more than one format for this video presentation is possible, the preferred approach would be to make a video with PowerPoint (see link here), “How to Make a Video in PowerPoint – ppt to video”) or a similar application. Note that the goal is not to cover all the themes or concepts in the readings for your week, but rather to share a case that can be meaningfully discussed in relation to the week’s themes and concepts. You will be evaluated on the basis of clarity, substance, analytical insight, and time management, but not on the basis of technical sophistication or mastery of the technological medium. In other words, imperfections in production quality are acceptable as long as they do not detract from the clarity and impact with which you organize and convey your message.

Students will be asked to sign up for a specific week as soon as possible at the beginning of the term. Here are some options (suggestive but not exhaustive) for the assignment:

- A brief study of the contributions of (or the approach of) a notable religious peacebuilder or peacebuilding organization (within a religious tradition covered that week);
- A case study of armed or nonviolent conflict involving religion (for example, religion in nationalism or in social movements);
- An examination of how particular religious texts were interpreted to promote peace or conflict (perhaps by examining a specific debate or two contrasting “peace positions”);
- A exploration of spirituality and peace within a particular religious tradition;
- An example of how religious arguments have been used to oppose (and/or justify) injustice or structural violence;
- An inquiry into how different understandings of the same religion might be used to exclude or embrace “the other”;
- An investigation of efforts to foster interreligious, gender, racial, economic, or ecological aspects of peace on the basis of religious teachings.

4. 30% Two Collections of Weekly Journal Entries (twelve entries total): Thirty percent of your final grade will be based on two collections of weekly journals (with each collection worth 15%). Writing a weekly journal provides you with an opportunity to develop a personal and intellectual response to the course experience that ties together major themes not only from readings, but also from presentations, videos, lecture slides, discussions, assignments, and other relevant activities. Be sure to go beyond mere summarization and offer carefully considered insights and reflections. Criteria for evaluation include thoroughness (integration of different readings and themes, responsiveness to presented material and the overall class experience), thoughtfulness
Though weekly journal entries do not need to be entirely uniform in length, 400 to 600 words (about two double-spaced pages) is a good rule of thumb. Thus, each of the two collections of six weekly entries should be 2,400 to 3,000 words in length. Place all of your entries into one file and organize them chronologically. Please double-space, using 1-inch margins and a regular font size (e.g., 12 point). Upload the first collection of journal entries (#1 through #6) by 11:59 p.m. on Saturday, February 27; the second collection of journal entries (#7 through #12) is due in LEARN by 11:59 p.m. on Saturday, April 10.

5. 20% Midterm Writing Assignment: Twenty percent of your final grade will be derived from one short (6-8 pp., double-spaced, 12-point font) writing assignment that will ask you to interpret and integrate course material. Topics and more specific instructions will be provided approximately two weeks before the March 13 due date. As with all other major assignments, please note that hard copies (rather than faxed or e-mailed submissions) are expected.

6. 20% Take-home Final Exam: The term will conclude with a take-home final exam, consisting of short essay questions asking you to apply concepts from readings and lectures to real or hypothetical religious peacebuilding scenarios. The expected length of submissions is 8-12 pages. Due by Monday, April 19.

Required Reading Materials:
2) PACS 326 Electronic Reserves. Available in LEARN. (Marked with an “*” in the schedule below.)

Web Page: This course will make use of the WATERLOO LEARN website. This site will provide general information for the course as well as electronic readings, instructor-generated materials, discussion boards, course handouts, and grades for term assignments. Important announcements (e.g., cancellation of class, new resources to help with an assignment) will also be posted there, so please try to check the site regularly.

To access LEARN, enter your WatIAM username and password. If you encounter difficulties, you are welcome to contact learnhelp@uwaterloo.ca. After you have successfully logged in, click on the PACS 604 link in the yellow “Courses and Communities” menu. Be sure that the email address listed under your name in LEARN is an address that you check on a regular basis.

Late Policy:

Deadlines matter. They keep us on track, enable us to be productive, and help us to meet our educational goals. There are times, however, when even the most organized and disciplined person faces difficult obstacles and unexpected challenges. If this happens, it is your responsibility to take the initiative and demonstrate commitment to getting the job done in a timely manner. Students who contact Prof. Funk well in advance of a due date to discuss realistic complications that may postpone completion of work often receive favourable consideration.

A penalty will be applied to assignments that arrive late without prior clearance. The standard deductions for late work are as follows:

- One day to one week late: -5%
- Eight days to two weeks late: -10%
- Fifteen days to three weeks late: -15%
- More than three weeks late: -20%

Please do not make the mistake of failing to submit an assignment. The penalties for late work are not insignificant, but up until final exam time late truly is much better than never.
Additional Considerations:
As we progress through the course, please remember:

- In academics as in life more generally, what we get from an experience depends on what we put into it. Preparation for class (completing reading and writing assignments on time, tracking world events) is the basis for effective learning.

- When we come to class prepared to participate and pose questions, we transform the classroom environment, making active and collaborative learning possible. We discover that learning is a communal rather than a solitary endeavor, and that each one of us is a resource for everyone else in the learning process.

- The subject matter covered by this course is inevitably open to multiple interpretations. This means that you will not always agree with ideas presented in course readings, lectures, and discussions. In such cases, disagreement is often a good thing, so long as it motivates you to develop an enhanced understanding where you stand in relation to others. What matters most is not whether or not we all agree, but whether or not we are willing to engage one another with respect and integrity.

- Collaborative learning requires not only preparation and self-expression, but also a commitment to active listening. Active listening is a communication skill that we develop as we begin to hear not only words, opinions, and ideas, but also the experiences and the awareness behind them. When we practice active listening, we cease to merely debate and begin to sharpen the focus of our deliberations. We clarify divergent perceptions and develop deeper understanding of contrasting perspectives. We become a clear mirror, reflecting back what we have heard and asking questions to learn rather than to score rhetorical points. In the process, we test and refine our own ideas and those held by others.

- During the term we will be privileged to host at least one guest speaker. Please treat visitors to our classroom with the same respect you would extend to a guest in your home.

- As we explore the subject matter of this course, let us remember that we are living and working on the traditional territory of the Attawandaron (also known as Neutral), Anishinaabe and Haudenosaunee peoples. The University of Waterloo is situated on the Haldimand Tract, the land promised to the Six Nations that includes ten kilometres on each side of the Grand River. For more information about the purpose of territorial acknowledgements, please see the CAUT Guide to Acknowledging Traditional Territory (PDF).
Course Schedule:

PART I: EXPLORING DIVERSE PERSPECTIVES ON RELIGION AND PEACE

WEEK ONE (January 13): MEETING ONE ANOTHER AND EXPLORING THE SUBJECT

Who are we? Why are we here? What are our goals for this course? What are some of your own working assumptions about religion, spirituality, conflict, and peace, and how do these assumptions relate to some influential academic frameworks?

PART II: OPPORTUNITIES AND CHALLENGES FOR RELIGIOUS PEACEBUILDING

WEEK EIGHT (March 10): RELIGION, RIGHTS, AND SOCIAL CHANGE

How do we make sense of highly divergent religious responses to peace/conflict as well as contemporary inclusion/exclusion and rights issues, even within the same religious tradition? How does gender play a role in the practice of religious peacebuilding? What are some challenges and opportunities for women engaged in religious peace and justice activism?

Required reading:

- Religion and Human Rights: What Are the Potential Points of Collaboration?” (examine webpage, and at least skim an article), OpenGlobalRights.

Midterm writing assignment due by 11:59 p.m. on Saturday, March 13.

March 15 and 16 (Monday & Tuesday): Scheduled Pause

WEEK NINE (March 17): TRANSFORMING DEEP-ROOTED CONFLICT

What are some ways in which spirituality and religion can inform practical peacemaking efforts, particularly when there are forces seeking to divide people? How can religion support active peacemaking and social justice work?

Required reading:

- Smith-Christopher, ed., Subverting Hatred.
  - Epilogue (Swearer, pp. 197-208).
WEEK TEN (March 24): QUALITIES OF FAITH-INSPIRED PEA CM EM MAKERS

What qualities do we encounter in peacemakers motivated by religion and/or spirituality? What can faith-inspired peacemakers teach us about the role of values in social change?

Required reading:

WEEK ELEVEN (March 31): NGOS AND INSTITUTIONAL FRAMEWORKS

What are some ways in which religious peacebuilding can be organized, implemented, and sustained? What is the role of faith-based organizations in contemporary peacebuilding?

Required reading:

WEEK TWELVE (April 7): FOSTERING RECONCILIATION AND BUILDING COMMUNITY

Can religious peacebuilding play a special role in promoting reconciliation, and in creating spaces for transformation and coexistence? How can religious peacebuilders reach across divides and work together to address challenging global issues such as poverty, ecological degradation, human rights abuses, and war? What have we learned this term – from our course materials and from one another? What ideas and insight will you be taking with you?

Required reading:

Journal #2 due by 11:59 p.m. on Saturday, April 10. Take-home final exam due by Monday, April 19.

UWaterloo Policies

Academic Integrity: In order to maintain a culture of academic integrity, members of the University of Waterloo are expected to promote honesty, trust, fairness, respect and responsibility. Arts: Academic Integrity website University of Waterloo: Academic Integrity Office
Discipline: A student is expected to know what constitutes academic integrity, to avoid committing academic offences, and to take responsibility for his/her actions. A student who is unsure whether an action constitutes an offence, or who needs help in learning how to avoid offences (e.g., plagiarism, cheating) or about “rules” for group work/collaboration should seek guidance from the course professor, academic advisor, or the Undergraduate Associate Dean. When misconduct has been found to have occurred, disciplinary penalties will be imposed under Policy 71 – Student Discipline. For information on categories of offenses and types of penalties, students should refer to Policy 71 - Student Discipline.

Grievance: A student who believes that a decision affecting some aspect of his/her university life has been unfair or unreasonable may have grounds for initiating a grievance. Read Policy 70 - Student Petitions and Grievances, Section 4.

Appeals: A student may appeal the finding and/or penalty in a decision made under Policy 70 - Student Petitions and Grievances (other than regarding a petition) or Policy 71 - Student Discipline if a ground for an appeal can be established. Read Policy 72 - Student Appeals.

Other sources of information for students:

Note for students with learning differences: The AccessAbility Services (AAS) office, located in Needles Hall Room 1132, collaborates with all academic departments to arrange appropriate accommodations for students with disabilities without compromising the academic integrity of the curriculum. If you require academic accommodations to lessen the impact of your disability, please register with the AAS office at the beginning of each academic term.

Counselling Services: Counselling Services provides free confidential counselling, in both individual and group sessions, with qualified professionals to help registered students, faculty and staff with personal concerns, educational career decisions, and strategies to studies and exams: www.adm.uwaterloo.ca/infocs, ext. 33528, NH Room 2080.

Accommodation for Illness: A medical certificate presented in support of an official petition for relief from normal academic requirements must provide all of the information requested on the “University of Waterloo Verification of Illness” form or it will not be accepted. More information can be obtained from Health Services and the form is available in pdf: https://uwaterloo.ca/health-services/student-medical-clinic/services/verification-illness

The Writing Centre: Writing Centre staff offer one-on-one support in planning assignments and presentations, using and documenting research, organizing and structuring papers, and revising for clarity and coherence.
