Course Description
In this course we'll discuss controversial moral topics, and we'll study a range of philosophical views on each. Topics include global poverty, euthanasia and assisted suicide, abortion, prenatal testing for infants with disabilities, income inequality, sexism, racism, indigenous issues, and ethical issues in technology. This course does not endorse any particular conclusion about these matters; rather, the idea is for you to both understand what others have had to say, and to develop, possibly change, and learn how to intelligently defend, your own opinions.

You should read the texts listed for a given date before class and be ready to discuss them. I will post study questions on LEARN ahead of time for each reading and you should come to class having given some thought to these. Course announcements and information will be on the LEARN page so please check it daily.

There is more information about this course on the "Further Course Information" document posted on LEARN. Be sure to read it. If you experience difficulties of any kind during the term, please come talk to me. Also, information about contacting mental health resources is included below. If you have questions about the syllabus, the course, the requirements, the assignments, or anything else to do with this course, please do not hesitate to ask!

Course Objectives
As in most branches of philosophy, philosophical thinking about moral issues encompasses a variety of theoretical approaches and perspectives on specific topics. This course aims to acquaint you with some of this variety, and to develop your understanding of the reasoning underlying the various perspectives we consider. It will also invite you to engage these perspectives actively and critically by developing your own analyses and reasoned evaluations of the views discussed. This approach will contribute to the development of your critical thinking. skills -- skills that are useful not only in philosophy, but in many other walks of life, both academic and non-academic. Our approach will also provide useful preparation for future courses in philosophy, especially higher-level courses in ethics, medical ethics, social philosophy, and political philosophy.

By the end of this course, you should be able to:
- understand and explain various points of view on the moral issues in the course;
- analyze and critically evaluate existing arguments related to moral issues;
- identify reasons why there is so much disagreement about controversial moral issues;
- understand some of the ways ethical theory relates to practical moral problems;
- develop your own ideas and arguments concerning the issues in the course;
- effectively communicate your analyses, evaluations, and ideas in written work.

Readings
All readings will be posted on LEARN as pdfs you can download.

Course Requirements and Assessment
- Paper 1, due Oct 12, 20%
- In-class test, Oct 17, 25%
- Paper 2, due Nov 21, 25%
- In class test, Nov 28, 25%
- Attendance and participation, 5%

Papers
Both papers should be 900-1200 words and topics will be handed out. For the first paper, you have the option of handing in a rewrite based on my comments. If you choose to do this your new paper grade will be an average of the original and the rewrite; your grade will not go down if the new draft is worse, but improved grades require significant changes and not just small edits. For the second paper, I will write fewer comments; if you would like more feedback, don't hesitate to ask. Paper assignments will ask you to write about your own ideas about a philosophical problem while engaging the texts and ideas we've encountered in class. The focus is on presenting an original argument. Of course, this means the ideas in your papers must be your own; we will talk more in class about how to ensure that the ideas you present as your own really are, and how to cite any outside sources you do use appropriately. If you have any questions at any time about academic honesty and what it requires, do not hesitate to ask. Just raise your hand or approach me after class. For help with writing, check out The Writing Centre.

Tests
Tests will be a mix of multiple choice, short answer and short essay; test 1 covers the first six weeks of material. Test 1 covers the first half of the course and test 2 the second half.
Attendance and Participation
Attendance is required and everyone should participate in class discussion. There are several ways to participate in this class: you can participate in class discussion, or by contributing to the discussion on LEARN, or by emailing or speaking with me personally. If you have to miss class, you are responsible for finding out what content you missed. If you come to class regularly without participating, your attendance and participation grade will be 70 percent (you may miss up to two classes for any reason with no penalty). If you participate regularly that will increase your participation grade; if you attend less frequently that will lower it. Contributing several questions and comments during each week will earn a grade at least in the 80s range. I will post attendance and participation grades on LEARN at the end of term; if you don't agree with yours please email me and we can discuss it. If for some reason coming to class is a problem for you, let me know and we can discuss.

Late work
Please submit your papers to LEARN before class on the day they are due. Obviously, you should hand in your papers on time, but if you must be late, I will subtract three percentage points from your paper grade per day of lateness. If you experience unexpected difficulties like illness or personal difficulties, please let me know; if you expect to miss a deadline or test, please let me know by email as soon as possible and preferably beforehand.

Information on Plagiarism Detection
No formal or technological plagiarism detection mechanisms will be used in this class.

Electronic Device Policy
Laptops or mobile devices can support your learning in this class, but they can also be a source of distraction for you and other students around you. Please turn off all sound notifications before you enter the classroom. You are welcome to use your devices for course-related activities such as taking notes, researching lecture topics, collaborating on group projects, viewing documents in LEARN, and communicating with other students about the course material. You are not permitted to use these devices for any non-course-related activities. Students who wish to use laptops or mobile devices are asked to sit in the laptop-designated area of the class. During activities that do not require these devices, such as group discussions, you may be asked to close or put them away. Please ask the instructor if you wish to make an audio recording of class lecture material. If you have concerns or comments about how the use of laptops or mobile devices is affecting your learning during the course, please make an appointment to talk with the instructor.

Attendance Policy
Attendance is required. See "Attendance and participation" section above.

Cross-listed course
Please note that a cross-listed course will count in all respective averages no matter under which rubric it has been taken. For example, a PHIL/PSCI cross-list will count in a Philosophy major average, even if the course was taken under the Political Science rubric.
Academic Integrity and Discipline

Academic Integrity: In order to maintain a culture of academic integrity, members of the University of Waterloo are expected to promote honesty, trust, fairness, respect and responsibility. See the Office of Academic Integrity webpage for more information.

Discipline: A student is expected to know what constitutes academic integrity, to avoid committing academic offences, and to take responsibility for his/her actions. Check the Office of Academic Integrity for more information. A student who is unsure whether an action constitutes an offence, or who needs help in learning how to avoid offences (e.g., plagiarism, cheating) or about “rules” for group work/collaboration should seek guidance from the course professor, academic advisor, or the Undergraduate Associate Dean. When misconduct has been found to have occurred, disciplinary penalties will be imposed under Policy 71 – Student Discipline. For information on categories of offenses and types of penalties, students should refer to Policy 71 - Student Discipline. For typical penalties check Guidelines for the Assessment of Penalties.

Grievances and Appeals

Grievance: A student who believes that a decision affecting some aspect of his/her university life has been unfair or unreasonable may have grounds for initiating a grievance. Read Policy 70 - Student Petitions and Grievances, Section 4. When in doubt, please be certain to contact the department’s administrative assistant who will provide further assistance.

Appeals: A decision made or penalty imposed under Policy 70 - Student Petitions and Grievances (other than a petition) or Policy 71 - Student Discipline may be appealed if there is a ground. A student who believes he/she has a ground for an appeal should refer to Policy 72 - Student Appeals.

Accommodation for Students with Disabilities

Note for students with disabilities: The AccessAbility Services office, located on the first floor of the Needles Hall extension (1401), collaborates with all academic departments to arrange appropriate accommodations for students with disabilities without compromising the academic integrity of the curriculum. If you require academic accommodations to lessen the impact of your disability, please register with the AS office at the beginning of each academic term.

If you are using Turnitin® in your course

Turnitin.com: Text matching software (Turnitin®) will be used to screen assignments in this course. This is being done to verify that use of all material and sources in assignments is documented. Students will be given an option if they do not want to have their assignment screened by Turnitin®. In the first week of the term, details will be provided about arrangements and alternatives for the use of Turnitin® in this course.

Note: students must be given a reasonable option if they do not want to have their assignment screened by Turnitin®. See guidelines for instructors for more information.

Academic freedom at the University of Waterloo
Policy 33, Ethical Behaviour states, as one of its general principles (Section 1), “The University supports academic freedom for all members of the University community. Academic freedom carries with it the duty to use that freedom in a manner consistent with the scholarly obligation to base teaching and research on an honest and ethical quest for knowledge. In the context of this policy, 'academic freedom' refers to academic activities, including teaching and scholarship, as is articulated in the principles set out in the Memorandum of Agreement between the FAUW and the University of Waterloo, 1998 (Article 6). The academic environment which fosters free debate may from time to time include the presentation or discussion of unpopular opinions or controversial material. Such material shall be dealt with as openly, respectfully and sensitively as possible.” This definition is repeated in Policies 70 and 71, and in the Memorandum of Agreement, Section 6.
