How the United States Needs - but Is Losing Its Grip on - Canada and Mexico

Wednesday September 28, 2011

Hagey Hall 341

12:30 – 2:00pm

Lecture Details

Despite getting such a large share of its income, resources, security, and international legitimacy from its relations with its two neighbours, Washington is accelerating its own global decline with security measures that reverse the periphery's dependent integration so brilliantly achieved by NAFTA.
