

PSYCHOLOGY 363/463
Spring 2015

COMMUNITY-BASED RESEARCH

WHY

Good decisions are informed by research evidence! Social services, governments, industry, and health organizations want to know “what the research says” before they make important decisions about new programs, policies, and innovations.

WHAT

Students learn state-of-the-art systematic review methods to gather, summarize, and communicate research findings to community leaders. Students create trustworthy research reports that serve the knowledge needs of society.

OUTCOMES

Psych 363/463 will prepare students for

- Community-based research
- Research projects and theses
- Future employment

Contact Dr. Kathleen Bloom (kbloom@uwaterloo.ca) for more information