MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Perhaps the title of this, my last “Message” as President, could be something like “Looking Back and Looking Ahead”. Having survived an often sunless summer, we find ourselves, as I write, in an all but snowless winter (which I know many people appreciate). Whatever will our Canadian spring hold? Well, no matter the weather, one thing we can know is that the activities that the UWRA Board has planned to welcome the new season will definitely not disappoint. So, look ahead and book ahead.

As the two-year term of a President draws to a close, looking back is almost inevitable, and when I do, I can point to many things that we can all feel enormously pleased with. They include:

» The subscribing membership in UWRA, representing some 26% of UW’s over 1,800 retirees

» The additional support of $3,000 (matched by UW) that the Board voted to donate to the UWRA Scholarship program in 2009, enabling our full scholarship program to continue to support students in difficult financial times

» The availability of dental coverage for retirees offered by Retirement Management Services (www.rmsretire.ca) in a plan that is independent of UW and UWRA

» The enthusiastic response to UWRA’s social events, including our annual wine and cheese party and spring and fall luncheons and coach tours, many of which have been sell-outs (so read on in this issue to see what is planned for the next such events)

» The increasingly welcoming reaction to WATtimes, as evidenced by retirees who have called to ensure that recent changes of address reached us because they “would not want to miss” an issue, and by family members of retirees who have mentioned how much they enjoyed looking through Mom’s or Dad’s WATtimes

» The few administrative “efficiencies” that have happened largely behind the scenes, fostered by our positive relationship with UW Departments such as Human Resources. An example is the improved manner in which we now handle UWRA’s records.

Now, as you might suspect, all of this takes time and effort on the part of several people. They are the members of the UWRA Board with whom I have been fortunate to work. I continue to be delighted by the caliber of people who serve as Board members, and from the time I took office, I could not have wished for a more talented and supportive group of people. I’d like to take this opportunity formally to recognize their efforts and to offer them my profound thanks.

And yes, I look ahead to serving as Past President under the leadership of the next President who shall remain “officially” unnamed until the day of our Annual General Meeting. We’d love to see you all there!

THE EDITOR’S CORNER

Well, winter has fled, so another WATtimes cannot be far behind.

Thanks as usual to Jan Weber in Graphics for waving her magic wand so cheerfully. Neal has given us a glimpse into the life of Jake Willms. My wife and I managed to sample one of his enjoyable concerts shortly before Christmas. Thanks to Gerry for yet another of his Crostic challenges, this one using a well worn target most of us just love to bash. Thanks also to everyone who helps get other items organized and out the door. Let us know whatever pleases you and especially whatever does not.

We will see you later, Phil Eastman
Neal Moogk-Soulis is an alumnus of the University of Waterloo and now, apparently, a Master of History.

Jake Willms lives in a retirement community in Waterloo with his wife Rita where they have lived for a few years. They recently celebrated 50 years of marriage with their extended family.

Jake grew up on a farm near Leamington, Ontario in the heart of tomato country. His family roots reach back to Russia, where his grandfather was caught up in the violence of the Russian Revolution. His family first moved to Rosetern, Saskatchewan, from the USSR in 1926. A few years later, the family moved to the Leamington area where the family had other relatives. “I’m probably one of the few people with their birthplace, ‘Ruthven, Ontario’ on their birth certificate,” he told me over tea in February.

The farm was modest by modern standards, but a 25-acre mixed farm kept the family busy. Jake is the youngest of five surviving children, following Walter, Victor, George and Sylvia. He attended school in a two-room school house in Ruthven before the family moved to Kitchener. Two of Jake’s brothers had married girls from Kitchener.

In Kitchener, Jake attended Kitchener Collegiate Institute and Vocational School (KCI) which he left at the end of grade 12. “It was the craziest thing I ever did,” he told me, but that did not stop his quest for more education.

Though she also lived locally, Jake first met his future wife at a church-related function in Fort Erie, Ontario. They dated for five years before they were married in 1957 when Jake was 22. “She was a lot of fun, a lovely girl, and I was attracted to her immediately,” Jake recalls when he describes what first attracted him to her.

After they were married, Rita taught public school for 27 years, 22 of them as a kindergarten teacher. While she taught, Jake started work at the Waterloo Trust where he was eventually promoted Manager of the Mortgage Department. While he worked at the Waterloo Trust, Jake took night courses at the University of Waterloo. His goal was to complete a bachelor’s degree in ten years and he finished in eight with a bachelor’s degree in English. A love of reading and literature made English seem like a good fit.

“As a while, I wondered if the University might be a good place to work, so I went to the Personnel Department to see what they had available.” On spec, and based on his administrative experience at the Waterloo Trust, Jake was offered a job as Assistant Registrar for the Faculty of Arts. He worked in that capacity for four years before he was appointed as Administrative Officer for the Faculty of Arts.

As the administrative officer, Jake was responsible for all of the administrative tasks within the faculty that the professors did not do. This included a lot of committee work, budget work and answering lots of questions. “It was a great job and I got to meet and work with lots of people.”

Jake’s office moved around campus as buildings evolved. He started in the basement of what would become the Dana Porter Library, then shifted to Needles Hall and finally to the Modern Languages building. Three deans in particular stand out for Jake: J S. Minas, Robin Banks and Brian Hendley. There were also several acting deans who pitched in when the Dean was busy elsewhere.

Jake’s career ran from 1969 through to 1996. He has the two dates stitched onto the arm of his University of Waterloo leather jacket. Rita had already retired and Jake followed a few years later. Jake was made an Honorary Member of the University in October 1997.

Like Jake, Rita pursued a part-time degree at UW and all three daughters also went through Waterloo. Lori graduated with a degree in Psychology and assists her husband’s Optometry practice in St. Catharine’s, Ontario. Lisa graduated with a degree in Optometry and is currently at the School of Optometry as Clinical Director of their on-site Centre for Laser Vision Correction. Lynn graduated with a degree in Science and then studied to become a Veterinary Technician. Lynn later joined the RCMP and is currently in the midst of a three-year assignment as part of the RCMP Musical Ride.

Jake and Rita have three grandchildren. Carianne attends Brock University, majoring in French and she will also receive a Bachelor’s of Education. Jonathan is enrolled at the University of Western Ontario in the Nursing Program. Tracey, the third grandchild, is currently in grade eleven.

Music has been a part of Jake’s life for a long time. While he was at UW, he led an annual carol sing in the Modern Languages
Occasionally, a newsletter focuses on retirees, lobby around Christmastime. He directed a high-school aged youth choir for 15 years and he is currently the director of the Jubilation Male Chorus. You might say that it was in his blood. He grew up in a family that enjoyed music and his father was a choir director as well.

The high school age choir had its genesis through Jake and Rita’s work as youth sponsors at their church. The choir soon expanded and attracted youth from around the region. The choir was a family affair: Jake conducted, Rita provided logistical support and all three girls sang in the choir. The choir sang mostly in local settings, and also made trips as far as Quebec and Winnipeg, Manitoba to perform.

The Jubilation Male Chorus started when Jake was approached by a few men and encouraged to organize a male chorus. Most of the original chorus members were men whom he knew in one way or another. Over time the chorus grew from about 25 singers to 60 or 70. They rehearse once a week and perform publicly every month or so.

The Jubilation Male Chorus is an interdenominational group drawn from all walks of life. Jake estimates that about 15 different denominations are represented, with members from 30 different churches participating. The chorus is community based, with singers drawn from Kitchener, Waterloo and the surrounding area. They sing sacred music both new and old. The chorus performs in church music concerts, at benefit concerts, and at senior’s residences.

UW RETIREE GRADUATE SCHOLARSHIP RECIPIENT

MEET A PHD STUDENT — Interviewed by Gillian Martin

The generosity of retiree contributions that have established and maintained the UWR Scholarship, have made it possible for Waterloo student, Charles Boyes to focus on his dissertation. The most recent recipient of the UW Retirees Scholarship, Charles is a PhD student from Toronto who attended York University for his BA in English and Creative Writing. He then went on to Carleton for his MA in English, and returned to York to start his PhD. After his second year, he transferred to the English department at UW.

What are you working on currently as a PhD student?
I’ve just started working full time on my dissertation. It’s rather daunting after nine years of structure to be left to my own devices. Daunting, but exciting.

The time that the scholarship has afforded me to work on my dissertation is invaluable. I’m thankful for being given the opportunity to fully dedicate my time to reading and writing.

What led you to this field of study?
I sort of stumbled into English in my second year of undergrad, not really finding what I was after in some other departments and introductory courses. I liked the critical approach and freedom to follow one’s own line of study that English seemed to offer, so I stuck around.

What do you like to do in your spare time?
I’ve done my best to make sure that my project reading intersects with what I would be or have for years been reading for fun. This way I can always justify reading the books that have been sitting on my shelf for years that I haven’t been able to get to.

Other than that, I volunteer at a cat rescue centre in Toronto and watch a lot of foreign films with my partner, Dani.

Why have you chosen to do your PhD through UW?
I’m not what might be thought of as a traditional English student (my interests are more political than literary, although the two often come together), I think that English departments offer critical tools and approaches that are unique in the academy. I know that I wouldn’t be able to pursue my study in a political science department or even a philosophy department, although one might think it would find a better home there.

UW English, I think, recognizes that what English departments offer, more than a core collection of texts to study and discuss, is a way of interacting with the texts, and continuously expanding our definition of texts. The department has appealed to a diverse group of graduate students with unbelievably different interests, but who all still connect with the department and with one another.

A professor in the department described it as ‘anarchy — but, ordered anarchy’. I like that.

This graduate scholarship attracts a government match of $10,000 for a total of $15,000.

Start by answering as many clues as possible. (Semi-colons in some clues are used to separate alternative clues for the same answer.) Next, transfer these letters to the correspondingly numbered squares in the grid. This begins the spelling out of the quotation, reading from left to right, with black squares separating the words. (Words may spill over to the next row; punctuation marks are not included.) Two letters are given.

As you proceed, words and phrases begin forming in the quotation and, working back and forth between the grid and the clue words, you can complete the puzzle. To aid you further, note that the first letters of the clue answers spell out the source of the quotation.

WATERLOO TIMES
OCCASIONAL NEWSLETTER FOR RETIREES
With this edition of WATtimes, we are introducing our fall trips. We will be returning to the Grand River for another enjoyable luncheon cruise, where we will learn more about our “home” watershed. I am very excited that we will be bringing back the big band era with a visit to the Canadian Big Band Celebration in Port Elgin! This promises to be a day to remember! Please join us on these outings and spend some time with old friends.

As I mentioned earlier, Rediña Caracaz, has joined me in the organization of our coach tours! Rediña is your contact person for securing trip reservations and for receiving your payments. I will continue to set the itineraries and conduct each event. Rediña is a marvelous person to work with, as I’m sure you’ll discover! Information on contacting Rediña appears below.

Because our coach trips are very popular and tend to fill up quickly, please make your reservations early to avoid disappointment! The spring trips are already well-subscribed, but there may still be space available and we do maintain waiting lists. Also, last minute cancellations sometimes occur and can create an opportunity.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 12, 2010
WINERIES OF THE BEAMSVILLE BENCH
The buds of spring will be breaking as we make our way to Niagara wine country! Our first stop will be the elegant Peninsula Ridge Estates Winery, where we will enjoy a guided tour of their handsome facilities and a tasting of their wines. You may want to take note of the restaurant in their Victorian mansion for a future special occasion!

Our lunch today, will be served in The View Restaurant at Eastdell Estates Winery, situated high on the escarpment and featuring a broad view across the vineyards and down to Lake Ontario! Wine is included with the meal.

Afternoon takes us a short distance to Rosewood Estates Winery and Meadery, where beekeeping is undertaken to provide a source of honey. The honey is used in the production of mead! There, we will learn about the process and enjoy tasting some mead, as well as some of their excellent grape wines.

Our day will conclude at the Mountain Road Wine Company. This winery features a broad selection of moderately priced wines, and of course, we will be sampling them!

There will be an opportunity to purchase wine at each of our stops. For reasons of safety and convenience, we recommend that you bring an empty wine carton with you for storing your purchases. They will be kept in the luggage hold beneath the coach.

Cost: $79 dollars for UWRA members and guests; $84 dollars for non-members. Price includes motor coach, all wine tastings and tours, lunch with wine, guides, all taxes and gratuities.

CASTLE GARDENS AND WINGS
Most of us have visited Casa Loma at least once in the past, perhaps many years ago! But, there is one aspect of the property that many may be unaware of. And that is the five acres of fabulous gardens that have been created there in recent years! Our visit will concentrate on these gardens with an illuminating one-hour guided tour, conducted by the staff gardener! Great for avid gardeners!

However, we are not ignoring the castle itself! There will be time to take a self-guided digital audio tour of the castle and to view the video “The Man Who Built Casa Loma”, narrated by Colin Mochrie. At noon, we will be served lunch in the castle restaurant.

In the early afternoon, our coach will take us the short distance to the Canadian Air & Space Museum, situated in Downsview Park. The museum is located in the original 1929 home of de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd., and the birthplace of the famous Beaver and Otter bush planes, which opened the Canadian North and were sold to customers in 65 countries.

The museum contains artifacts and full-size aircraft, including a replica of the Avro CF-105 Arrow supersonic interceptor and the restoration project of Toronto’s Lancaster bomber built by Victory Aircraft Ltd. at Malton in 1944. We will also see the original shop equipment used to build 1200 Curtis JN-4 biplanes in 1917-18.

We will be given a full tour of the facility and perhaps will be involved in a scavenger hunt!

Cost: $82 dollars for UWRA members and guests: $87 dollars for non-members. Price includes motor coach, entrance fees and tours, lunch, guides, all taxes and gratuities.

Coach departure time and location: 8:00 am, UW parking lot X (behind Optometry). Free parking for UWRA cars has been arranged with UW Parking Services. Please arrive at least 10 minutes prior to departure time to obtain your free parking permit. Returning to Waterloo at approximately 6:00 pm.

CANADIAN BIG BAND CELEBRATION

Come with us as we travel back in time to the 1930’s and ‘40’s and the unforgettable music of the big bands! The town of Port Elgin welcomes us to the beautiful Canadian Auto Workers’ Family Education Centre, situated on the shores of Lake Huron, for an afternoon of music at the Canadian Big Band Celebration that is sure to leave us wanting more!

After enjoying a pleasant morning drive through rich farmland, we will arrive at Aunt Mabel’s Country Kitchen, located on the southern edge of Port Elgin. Home cooking is featured there and we will be served a tasty lunch including soup, quiche and dessert!

Then, it’s off to the CAW hall and the big band show, which will keep our toes tapping from 1:30 pm until 5:00 pm! Three bands will perform for us during the afternoon and there is a dance floor for those wishing to demonstrate their agility! Smart casual attire is suggested.

Following the show, we will be treated to a buffet dinner in the CAW hall and will be joined by the musicians. A great opportunity to chat with the music makers, themselves! Several reports that I have heard give rave reviews about the food served there!

After dinner, we set out for Waterloo with memories of a great day and humming tunes all the way home!

Cost: $105 dollars for UWRA members and guests; $110 dollars for non-members. Price includes motor coach, lunch and dinner, admission to CBBC, all taxes and gratuities.

WATERLOO CO-OP STUDENTS: A RELIABLE RESOURCE IN AN UNCERTAIN ECONOMY

Olaf Naese invites retirees to help promote Co-op

With the economic slowdown continuing to affect day-to-day operations of the workplace, organizations want ways to remain competitive. Hiring Waterloo co-op students can be one useful tool in building resilience to beat the recession. Having worked at the university, you know a Waterloo education blends academic studies with the world of real work and you’ve seen how students and employers benefit, equally, from the co-op experience.

You can help maintain the university’s reputation as a leader in applied education and, most importantly, help Waterloo students by using or promoting http://www.cecs.uwaterloo.ca the co-op hiring program.

There are always good reasons to hire UW co-op students. They’re smart, innovative, versatile and armed with fresh ideas and up-to-date knowledge. They also arrive in the workplace with a triple incentive to perform well, since they’re working for academic credit as well as experience and pay. As well, they enjoy the support of the university, through Co-operative Education, which has a serious interest in their success.

WHY WOULD EMPLOYERS WANT TO HIRE CO-OP STUDENTS IN AN UNCERTAIN ECONOMY?

» Co-op hiring brings even more value in unstable economic times.
» Co-op adds flexibility. Employers, can bring in the talent needed to get new projects started, adding the capacity to grow, experiment or seize opportunities without long term commitments.
» Employers can staff ongoing projects with employment-ready students so permanent employees can devote time to tasks aimed at beating the recession.
» New skills and specialties can be added to the employer’s talent pool to help the organization introduce and manage the changes imposed by economic conditions.
» Tax incentives and external funding may also be available to co-op employers http://www.cecs.uwaterloo.ca/employers/support.php.

» There is no long term commitment; employers are not locked into full time salaries, benefits and other employment costs.

As a retiree, through your networks, you can help us spread the word that co-op students are a good short term investment in flexibility today and a good long term investment in the economic recovery.

Ready to refer co-op to a potential employer? The hiring process starts at http://www.cecs.uwaterloo.ca/employers/hire.php

A NEW UWRA BOARD MEMBER

I mentioned in my “message” how very pleased we are with the caliber of people we are able to attract to serve as UWRA Board members. And once again, here is a perfect example. Judy Van Evra, who accepted the invitation to join the Board in January of this year, comes to us from St. Jerome’s College where she was a Professor of Psychology from 1975 to 1996 and Chair of the Department for 6 of those years. From 1980 to 1995, Judy also served as Associate Director of the Institute for Study of Learning Disabilities. Judy comes to us with a rich history of Board memberships, including service on the Boards of St. Jerome’s, Lutherwood, Family and Children’s Services and Interfaith Pastoral Counselling Centre

Judy is married to Jim Van Evra (also a UW retiree), and they enjoy their family of 3 daughters and 2 grandchildren. She shares with many of us a love of reading, traveling (especially out west where 2 of their daughters live), spending time with friends, as well as cooking, swimming and walking.

On a personal note, I can add that, having been privileged to know Judy and her family for 40 years (how can that be?), I know that she will be a real asset to the UWRA Board.

Lorraine Beattie
The year was 1967. The University of Waterloo was celebrating its 10th anniversary and was well on its way to becoming a world-class institution.

It was also the year Carol Vogt, during her studies as a graduate student, first began working for the university. Although she never expected it at the time, Vogt quickly found herself growing committed to a lifetime of serving as a member of the Waterloo family. For the next 38 years, until her retirement in 2005, Vogt lent her knowledge and dedication to improving Waterloo’s Information Systems and Technology (IST).

She directly impacted the innovation of computer systems as we know them today. On the technical side she was quiet savvy, working with original computer hardware that would eventually evolve to word processors, the IBM personal computer, and later, the worldwide web. She became the director of IST’s Electronic Workplace Group and chair of the Web Operations Committee. But more than this, she was a passionate teacher. One of her close colleagues described her as “showing others the way with style and grace.”

Her passion for the University of Waterloo and its outstanding students was reflected in the bequest she left Waterloo in her will. She also made Waterloo the beneficiary of her group life insurance policy. Her generosity has provided support for the Math Senate Scholarship Fund, geared toward enabling current and future students to achieve their academic and life goals.

Sadly, Carol passed away in August of 2009. But her legacy lives on through the achievements of the current and future students who are impacted by her generous gift.

The quotation, written by Farley Mowat, is taken from the preface of “Never Cry Wolf”, and follows below.

“Homo Bureaucratis, that aberrant product of our times who, cocooned in convention, witlessly wedded to the picayune, obsessed with obscurantism, and foundering in footling facts, nevertheless considers himself the only legitimate possessor of revealed truth and, consequently, the self-appointed arbiter of human affairs.”

The clue answers appear below.

MEMBERSHIP IN UWRA

The bylaws of UWRA defines membership as follows:

Categories of membership:
1. Annual Subscribing Members (ASM) – those retirees who pay the annual fee (currently $10).
2. Lifetime Subscribing Members (LSM) – those retirees who pay the lifetime fee (currently $100).
3. Associate Members (AM) – those retirees who elect not to pay either the annual or lifetime fee.

What is your membership status?
The line above your name, in the mailing address printed below, shows the status of your membership: for example, DEC2009 indicates that you are an ASM with your fee paid up to that date. LIFE2004 shows that you became an LSM in 2004, while an empty space reveals that you are an AM of UWRA.

To become a Life or Annual subscribing member, or to renew an annual membership, please complete the form below. This application form is printed in each issue of WATtimes as a reminder to members, and is not intended to suggest that paid up members are in arrears. On those occasions when paid up members send in an extra payment, it is our custom to extend the expiry date by one year.

Please note: Changes of address should be sent directly to Wanda Speek in Human Resources, GSC, Room 130.
