

WATtimes Report

UWRA Annual General Meeting

May 2023

Last year was noteworthy for at least two things: the relaxation of COVID restrictions, and resumption of a printed WATtimes – the spring/summer issue – for the first time in two years.

The University of Waterloo supported the creation, printing, and mailing of two issues in 2022, a spring/summer issue and a fall/winter issue. WATtimes has settled into that rhythm of two issues each year, with one coming out in May/June and another in December.

WATtimes is grateful for the strong support of University Communications, specifically that of Brandon Sweet and Megan McGarry, and the talented graphic artists at Creative Services who transform our lifeless Word drafts into the attractive publication that retirees enjoy.

The 2023 spring/summer issue of WATtimes, currently in production, is Bob Hicks's fourth WATtimes as co-editor. It is also his last, as Bob steps down from the UWRA Board of Directors and his position as co-editor. Thank you, Bob, for your contributions!

Bob's departure coincides with the arrival of Judi Jewinski as co-editor, who will assume greater responsibility for WATtimes in 2023-2024 as Ron Champion, Jim Frank, and others organize the May 2024 CURAC conference, which the UWRA will host.
