TOM SCOTT, PhD (QUEEN’S)
DIRECTOR’S STATEMENT

Founded in 1981, the School is proud of the support of its graduates and their contributions to accounting and finance theory and practice. We have forged a distinct educational experience for aspiring professionals. Our Learning Model emphasizes the understanding, application, and integration of professional and technical competencies both inside and outside the classroom. We are the leading co-operative education program in Canada. Our programs are fully accredited by CPA Ontario across all options and our students can proceed directly to the CPA common final exam. We are recognized by the Chartered Financial Analysts and our students are earning prime placements in the investment industry. Our graduates fill leading roles in professional firms, financial organizations, and business.

We provide intellectual leadership through innovative research. SAF ranks twenty-seventh globally for accounting research, second in Canada. Accounting information systems ranks third globally and first in Canada and managerial accounting ranks ninth globally and first in Canada. We also rank first in Canada for tax, second for financial reporting, and third for audit research. Our accounting PhD program ranks second in Canada. This year Professor Jeong-Bon Kim joins the School as the Wadsworth Chair. Professor Kim is a prolific researcher who works effectively with younger faculty and doctoral students. Our Centers focus on emerging issues and disseminate research findings. Our ethics and tax centres held successful conferences this spring bringing together academics and professionals. We will hold a similar conference this fall on information systems.

We are dedicated to educating the next generation of financial leaders and enhancing our students’ experience, our research, and our relationships. This year we open a new finance lab in Waterloo and Masters of Tax space in Toronto. I invite you to explore this year’s Year in Review report to learn more about our exciting initiatives.

“Experiential” and “co-curricular” are the first words that spring to AFM program director Donna Psutka’s mind when she surveys the many initiatives undertaken in 2014. This year was marked by a robust emphasis on co-curricular activities to enhance our students’ success through understanding, application, and integration.

“We focus on developing students’ professional qualities,” explains Victoria Bambrick, ELCD coach, “and we help them navigate the waters as they make career choices.” A series of “Success beyond the Classroom” workshops featured leaders from industry, including SAF alumni. “The speakers invited are the complete professionals that our students aspire to be,” adds Bambrick’s colleague Kevin MacMahon, the associate director for ELCD. Among the offerings were a Professional Women’s Network workshop, a Consulting 101 workshop, and a Not-for-Profit Sector Connector.

Other highlights:

- A standout in 2014 was the much-revamped Professional Futures Conference. The three-day event for second-year students, comprising 13 highly interactive sessions on professional and practical topics, was the best attended in recent memory and garnered positive reviews from participants.
- Students on the David T. Carter Foundation Review Team, mentored by the Waterloo Wellington CPA Association in partnership with SAF, assessed grant applications for the Lyle Hallman Foundation and the KW Community Foundations. “It was a great experience for our students,” says Donna Psutka, “and it was highly appreciated by these agencies.”
- During 2014 top students interested in careers in tax were invited to join a new venture, the Young Tax Professionals team. Guest speakers (SAF alumni and others) deepened students’ classroom learning — and their awareness of career prospects. “We wanted to show that a tax career involves much more than we can give them in class,” says Jim Barnett, team co-organizer with colleague Julie Robson.

“Experiential learning is critical to our program design,” says Psutka. The AFM director and the ELCD team pledge to continually enhance and develop co-curricular initiatives that enhance students’ competence, professionalism, and practical experience through understanding, applying, and integrating.

NOTES:
- Graph demonstrates work terms for the winter, spring, and fall terms.
- 8-month work terms shown as two 4-month work terms.
- Total number of AFM co-op work terms in 2013 declined over 2012 due to a co-op sequencing change initiated in 2011. The change resulted in more students participating in co-op in 2014.

The Student Investment Fund offered hands-on training in equity valuation and portfolio management including stock pitching, with guidance from industry experts and SAF faculty.

A thousand of the world’s brightest students gathered at the University of Waterloo this past September for Hack the North, the first massive, international-scale hackathon in Canada. Students from Waterloo’s computer science and SAF’s CFM programs, along with students from over 100 schools including MIT, Harvard, Princeton, and Yale participated in the 36-hour learning and technology build event.

COMPUTING AND FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT

ALAN HUANG, PhD (COLORADO)
CO-DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF ACCOUNTING AND FINANCE

GEORGE LABAHN, PhD (ALBERTA)
CO-DIRECTOR, DAVID R. CHERITON SCHOOL OF COMPUTER SCIENCE

“Our program continues to grow,” reports David Ha, manager of the rigorous CFM program. Applications for admission stayed robust in 2014, as prospective students — and their parents — saw distinct benefits in an educational experience offering superior preparation in both finance and computer science.

“We get top students from around the world,” adds Alan Huang, CFM’s co-director, noting that international students comprised about 25 percent of enrolment in 2014. Huang and his colleague draw attention to the program’s high level of diversity and its favorable gender balance (women comprised 25 percent of enrollees, high for computer-related fields).

Applications from high school students and from university students seeking to transfer continued to pour in during the year.

One noteworthy highlight in 2014 was the establishment of a new CFM scholarship by UW alumni Jim and Cindy Colvin. Huang and Ha invite others to follow the Colvins’ generous example.

A highlight in a different area was the participation and top performance of CFM students in “Hack the North,” a 36-hour competition bringing together students to create unique software or hardware projects. A student-led team developed Botscape, a complex multiplayer AI game.

Also celebrated in 2014 was the program’s 100 percent co-op work term placement rate, a token of the eagerness of prominent firms to hire students competent in both finance and computer science.

A remarkable sense of community has quickly grown up among current students and CFM graduates now in industry. “Alumni know from their own experience the value of the double skill set,” Ha explains, “and they’re reaching out to us as they look to hire recent grads.”

“We’re on the right track with this program, and we have something to be proud of,” says Huang. “We’ll stay the course with our curriculum, as we continue to ensure that our graduates are very strong in both hard and soft skills.”

2014 AWARDS NIGHT

The annual SAF Awards Night provides an opportunity for SAF Student Fellows to connect with their SAF Alumni Honourees, for scholarship winners to get to know their donors, and for the participants to hear inspiring addresses delivered by alumni and students. Lloyd Carr-Harris Scholarship

The Lloyd Carr-Harris Foundation was honoured at the 2014 Awards Night for its generosity in giving and positively impacting the student recipients of the scholarship for the past 16 years. Nine of the scholarship recipients attended the dinner to personally thank Spencer Bibby (MAcc ’99), Foundation Trustee. A proud Fellowship Honouree, Spencer spent his evening getting to know his fellowship student and the 9 Lloyd Carr-Harris scholarship recipients. The Foundation and Spencer’s commitment and support is unparalleled and paving the way for a bright future for our students.

“I am so grateful to be a Lloyd Carr-Harris scholarship recipient. Each term, this scholarship encourages me to continue to push myself academically,” reports Victoria Gibbins, the 2014 scholarship recipient. “It has peppered my university experience with so many exciting opportunities that I would not have been able to take advantage of without such generous financial support.”

SAF STUDENT GROUPS

SAF student groups are engaged and contribute to the dynamic learning and experiential environment at Waterloo. The student groups submitted the following reports summarizing their 2014-2015 year.

Accounting and Finance Student Association (AFSA)

AFSA had a successful 2014-15 year that included many great changes and memories. The student body voted multiple times on the AFSA Levy which will allow AFSA to continue initiatives such as a newsletter and the Humans of SAF page that debuted this year. Besides exam review sessions hosted every term, AFSA also hosted a Career Premiere Series during the Winter term which featured great speakers including the CFO of the Sick Kids Foundation. AFSA’s Corporate Relations team organized a “Where Your Career Takes You” event in which students were given the opportunity to hear from industry professionals in the fields of consulting, finance, and tax on how they could use their background in accounting to launch their careers. The year featured other events such as exam de-stress with a boxing bouncy castle, semi-formals, sports tournaments and bubble tea talent show. The AFSA Goes for Gold Conference team sent delegates to three conferences this term: Achieve, Show Me the Green, and Fast Pace to the Case. AFSA donated proceeds raised through various events to World Vision Canada and Heart 4 Heart Children’s charity.

Accounting and Finance Orientation Week (AFOW)

The 2014 AFOW week this past September started with a Games Day that encouraged students to meet new friends and connect with upper year students while participating in lots of fun games and activities. On Day 2, students enjoyed mini games and mingling time with fellow first years at Carnival Craze. Ice cream eating contests, Blackjack, Speed “Mingling”, and Ring Toss events have always been highly anticipated at the Carnival. The Club Crawl event provided students with an opportunity to ask questions about the different SAF clubs on campus and how to get involved. The week ended with a celebration of fashion and dance at the annual semi-formal.

With over 80% of the incoming SAF class participating in the week, AFOW has continued to grow its presence within the University and in the Waterloo community. We can’t wait to meet the Class of 2020 in September for an exhilarating week of jam-packed activities and unforgettable fun!

ACE Consulting Group

ACE Consulting provides essential services to start-up companies including accounting and bookkeeping, financial projections, and market research. In just 8 months’ time, its portfolio of start-ups doubled to 74 clients. ACE developed new partnerships with professional firms including EY, PwC, and Wildeboer Law, and with new entrepreneurial initiatives around the University, such as the St. Paul’s Greenhouse for social entrepreneurship. The diversity of our clients also increased recently. Lunarch Studios (MIT graduates and professional poker players) trusts ACE with bi-weekly payroll and bookkeeping, while Avidbots (Haxlr8r, seed-funded cleaning robot technology) and MetricWire (Y-combinator backed, seed-funded scientific data platform) used ACE to revamp their financial statements. As well, ACE has clients with disruptive products (such as delayed caffeine pills and artificial kidneys), Canada’s largest Hack-a-thon, and HeartStone calculators.

One notable success this year was the launch of the ACE Community Fund in support of Nutrition for Learning which has raised hundreds of dollars in funding and significant awareness in the start-up community. The third annual ACE the Pitch was also a huge success, with over 25 start-ups attending, together with judges from venture capital, consulting, incubators, and successful Kitchener-Waterloo entrepreneurial ventures.

hEDGE Conference

In May 2015, hEDGE held its 5th annual Kick-Off Event in downtown Toronto with presenting sponsor, BMO Capital Markets. The event attracted a diverse group of aspiring finance students from various schools across the country. Students were able to speak with industry leaders while also gaining personal insight from numerous firm representatives. Last summer, hEDGE partnered with international management consulting firm Oliver Wyman (OW), to launch hEDGE’s inaugural financial services consulting case competition. Students from universities across Ontario were able to showcase their technical and presentation skills in both consulting and finance to a panel of OW judges. hEDGE hosted its annual, three-day conference in August 2014 in which delegates from universities across Canada attended firm-led workshops, keynotes from top executives, and networking events with industry professionals. Twelve workshops were offered that covered the six pillars in capital markets: asset management, equity research, investment banking, private equity, sales & trading and venture capital. In addition to the workshops, practice interview sessions, and socials provided delegates with an experience that was holistic, candid and yielded relationships with both firms and fellow students.

MASTER OF ACCOUNTING (MAcc)

GREG BERBERICH, PhD (WATERLOO)
DIRECTOR

The MAcc program, a widely honoured SAF flagship, marked its 30th anniversary in 2014. What began as a risky adventure into uncharted waters in 1984, when a handful of students enrolled in the first classes, saw exactly 200 students graduate in 2014. The program is currently boasting its largest-ever class size of 216 members in 2015.

The 2014 MAcc class was the last one to go through before new CPA requirements take effect, and the last one to write the long-running UFE (Uniform Final Examination). Students from 2015 onwards will get direct access to the new exam, reports program director Greg Berberich. This has meant altering the curriculum to align it with the new CPA stipulations.

Another cause for celebration in 2014 was the achievement of Akash Kapoor, who placed first nationally in the UFE, the fourth MAcc student to win the gold medal in the last five years. MAcc grads have captured 7 UFE National and 14 Ontario Gold Medals in the program’s three decades.

A new proposed Graduate Diploma in Accounting secured UW senate approval in December 2014 and is under consideration by the Ontario Universities Council. Waterloo is among a number of universities making similar proposals. “This new Diploma will give MAcc students an alternative path to the CPA,” Berberich explains. “This will allow them to exit the program after the Winter term, complete the final two modules in the CPA Professional Education Program, then write the CPA Common Final Exam. If approved, I expect it to become a popular path to the CPA designation.”

As it enters its fourth decade, the MAcc program faces an increasingly crowded and challenging CPA education environment, and is seeking to anticipate and reflect the needs of the profession and the coming generations of students.

CPA Accreditation Pathway

The School of Accounting and Finance’s AFM and MAcc programs have received the highest level of national accreditation, providing students with the flexibility to tailor their direct pathway to the CPA designation. AFM students who complete the MAcc are exempt from the CPA Professional Education Program and proceed directly to the CPA Common Final Examination (CFE) upon graduation.

Four gold medals in five years in national accounting competition

In the last five years, four recent graduates have won the national and Ontario gold medals for the Chartered Accountancy Uniform Final Examination (UFE).

Akash Kapoor, MAcc ’14, won the prestigious Governor General’s Gold Medal and the Ontario Gold Medal for having achieved the highest standing in Canada on the UFE. The UFE gold medal is one of the many achievements in Akash’s academic career. In 2012, Akash was named the Arts Co-op Student of the Year for developing a tool that created business efficiencies, saving 6500+ administrative hours. The tool was integrated into the employer’s policies and is now used all over Canada.

“The CPA designation is a passport to stepping into challenging roles and allows us to have the opportunity to perpetually learn,” reports Akash. “I believe that the designation adds tangible credibility and opens doors to countless experiences.”

Considered one of the most challenging professional examinations in the world, the UFE top mark comes with a cash prize of $5,000. George Nicholas Tsai (MAcc ’13), Juliana Yuen (MAcc ’11) and Vicky Au (MAcc ’10) reached the same high achievement in 2013, 2011, and 2010 respectively.

Overall, 3,576 graduates from across Canada passed the UFE, with another MAcc graduate, Julian Lo (MAcc ’14) placing well on the prestigious 54-member National Honour Roll.

MTax students work closely and interactively with peers, industry professionals, and tax faculty. All MTax classes are taught in Toronto, close to the pulsating financial district.

All the SAF programs are dynamic and constantly in motion, but the MTax program was on the move, literally, during recent months. After nearly two decades of conducting classes in the CPAO building on Bloor street east in Toronto, program staff pulled up stakes and headed downtown into new quarters in the iconic Eaton Centre.

Classes at the Yonge street site will start in September 2015. “We’ll have two classrooms that will be our own,” reports MTax director Deb Kraft. “It was with mixed emotions that we departed our old location. We’re very appreciative of CPAO’s hospitality during our 18-year tenancy, and we thank them for their tremendous support.”

Other significant events and developments occurred while the move was in view. Returning to the classroom in spring 2014 was Brian Arnold, a senior adviser to the Canadian Tax Foundation, a UN and OECD consultant — and an MTax lecturer in earlier days. “We were thrilled to have him back,” says the director, “and it was an excellent experience for our students.”

As well, a new award came on stream. The Canadian Tax Foundation National Conference Award meant two strongly performing MTax graduates could attend the tax profession’s premier conference (held in BC in December), and gain valuable exposure to that community.

Developments also continued within the curriculum. The latest product of close collaboration with program stakeholders is “Accounting for Income Taxes,” a new course to be launched in Fall 2015 by SAF’s Deloitte professor Ken Klassen. “I’m very excited about our future direction,” says Kraft, reflecting on the MTax program’s outstanding growth since 1997 — and its latest 100 percent work term placement and graduation figures. “We’re consciously growing to meet the demand. And I’m equally excited about the participation of our employers. It’s a win-win!”
With 27 new graduates in 2014, the program boasts 320 graduates as of December 2014, the vast majority of whom are employed in the field of taxation. As of December 2014, our alumni are employed in various tax disciplines as shown below:

84 students enrolled (74 full-time, 10 part-time) during the 2014-2015 academic year

90% increase in graduates — 81 to 154 — comparing first 5 years to most recent 5 years

31 the average number of graduates per year in the most recent 5 years
Asker for recent highlights in the PhD program, director Theresa Libby quickly breaks into a big smile. In the 18 months spanning Spring 2014 to Fall 2015, four students will have received their degrees. This is the largest number in any comparable period since the doctoral program began in 1988.

Two of these grads have taken up academic positions, at the University of Pittsburgh and at Boston College. “We’re proud of them, and of all our students,” says Libby, who was honoured with the 2014 L.S. Rosen Outstanding Educator Award of the Canadian Academic Accounting Association.

The job market now offers great opportunities for new PhDs, as professors who began their careers in the 1970s are starting to retire. Libby points out an additional, unanticipated source of delight. In Fall 2015, five new students — three of them international students — will enter the PhD program. The unprecedented high number may suggest a trend. Even more noteworthy is that the Fall cohort is composed entirely of women, a truly exciting first in the program’s history.

“Our program is very healthy,” observes Libby. She is especially pleased that alumni are increasingly taking an active, nurturing interest in current students. Although Libby will soon step down after five years as director, she will retain a close connection to SAF doctoral students, supervising several of them and collaborating with others on research projects. She is also eager to meet professor Jeong-Bon Kim, who will take over the PhD program in July. Kim, a distinguished scholar whose career has included faculty positions in Shanghai, Hong Kong, and Montreal, will hold SAF’s prestigious Wadsworth Chair in Accounting and Finance.

“It’s nice to bring new energy into the program,” says Libby, “and I’m really excited that he wants to be involved in our work!”

The SAF’s collegial research environment fostered two new research centres — the Waterloo Centre for Taxation in a Global Economy, and the CPA-SAF Learning Centre. The Tax Centre represents an evolution from the former Deloitte Centre for Tax Research Education. With eight new sponsors, the Centre’s mandate is to support tax research more broadly in enhancing research and support for graduate and undergraduate students.

Since 1982, the SAF has had a mutually advantageous partnership with CPA Ontario. The CPA-SAF Learning Centre is the latest initiative of the partnership, which provides funding to enhance the learning and preparation of MAcc students for the CPA Common Final Examination (CFE).

In accounting research, SAF’s accounting research rankings remain strong, according to the authoritative Brigham Young University 2014 survey. SAF places 27th globally and second in Canada for accounting research and has placed well in the individual categories. Our faculty continues to be successful in gaining funding from SSHRC, CICA, and other agencies. They and their graduate students are continually being invited to present their latest findings at academic and practitioner conferences, publishing their work in a wide range of scholarly journals.

Supporting our students

Scholarships make it possible to recognize the hard work of SAF’s new and returning students. We offer entrance scholarships based on academic standing as well as upper-year and graduate scholarships.

SAF programs are some of the highest demand programs at the University of Waterloo, and have one of the highest tuition rates on campus. The average cost for the undergraduate program is $55,000. The MAcc program leads graduates directly to the CPA Common Final Examination and adds another $14,000 in tuition costs to students continuing for the fifth year.

While we are extremely grateful for the support students receive from the scholarships we currently have, there is and will continue to be need for additional support. Student scholarships and awards funded through donor-directed trusts and endowments help attract and keep the brightest students.

Our goal is to fund 10 new scholarships through donor directed trusts and endowments in the next academic year, but we need your support to achieve our goals.

MAcc classes celebrate milestone and establish a tradition

In 2014-15, two MAcc classes made significant contributions to the SAF in honour of their respective 25th anniversaries. When Gavin Swartzman, CEO of Peerage Realty Partners, attended the MAcc class of 1988 25th reunion, he reflected on the deeper meanings of the milestone that he and his class marked. His reflections initiated a fundraising effort that saw his class and future classes make “even bigger things happen” for future generations.

Gavin and classmate Shawn Porter, a partner at Deloitte’s Toronto office, invited their class to support the SAF Alumni Excellence Endowment Fund. This fund provides flexibility to the Director of the SAF to support areas of highest priority. Gavin asserts that his commitment stems from a profound appreciation for what he gained at Waterloo. “Professors not only provided an excellent overall education,” he says, “they equipped students to take on anything that might arise in their careers.”

A few months later, members of the MAcc ‘89 class returned to campus to celebrate their own milestone. “The School encouraged us to think broadly about issues,” states Troy Maxwell, CFO of RBC Capital Markets who successfully challenged his MAcc ‘89 class to continue the tradition of giving.

Building with anticipation is the 25th reunion for the MAcc ‘90 class, which will be celebrating at Waterloo’s Reunion weekend on October 3, 2015.

SAF Alumni have contributed over $520,000 to the Alumni Excellence Endowment fund to date. Of this total, over $278,000 has been received through the 25th anniversary appeal. Our vision is to reach out to all classes celebrating their 25th anniversary, and to grow the fund to $1 million.
Centres impact research and learning

Thank you to the Chartered Professional Accountants of Ontario (CPAO) whose vital partnership with the SAF dates from 1982. CPAO’s philanthropic leadership is key to the success of the SAF in providing support for our students, faculty, and alumni.

CPA-SAF Centre for Capital Markets Education

Established in 2012 with funding from CPAO, the CPA-SAF Centre for Capital Markets Education gives undergrads extra-curricular opportunities to acquire hands-on training in equity valuation and portfolio management, and to develop their technical and professional skills.

CPA-SAF Learning Centre

The CPA-SAF Learning Centre supports and assists SAF faculty members as they pursue research projects and mentor the next generation of finance and accounting students. Most recently, the CPA-SAF Learning Centre provided resources for MAcc students which included UFE prep sessions, Securexam software, and cases specially designed for their program.
