

Talking to Children About Consent

10/3/2024

Stacey Jacobs (she/her)
Educator, Sexual & Gender Based Violence Prevention

SVPRO – Sexual Violence Prevention & Response Office

Colonization & Consent

Our history is one of non-consent

- Sexual and gender-based violence has been used historically and currently to take power and control over Indigenous communities and lands
- The impacts of this are ongoing and evident in things such as non-consensual resource extraction and the large number of Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women, Girls, and Two-Spirit people
- In Canada this has included violence against other populations as well such as Black and Chinese people who were enslaved and faced sexual and physical violence as they worked for the colonizers' purposes

WHO IS THIS WORKSHOP FOR?

- Anyone who has little people in their lives, or wants to
 - Parents/Guardians/Caregivers/Caring Adults
 - Anyone who works with children, or wants to
 - Anyone who wants to learn more about consent
-

EVERYONE!

WHO NEEDS TO LEARN ABOUT CONSENT?

Adults and Children of ALL Genders and ALL ages!

It is an everybody, everyday conversation.

EVERYONE!

Informed, compassionate and empowered children grow into informed, compassionate and empowered adults who are more likely to use consent in their lives and set appropriate boundaries.

Consent

- Can be used in everyday interactions, as well as sexual interactions
- a conscious decision by all people involved to engage in a mutually agreed upon activity
- knowing and setting personal boundaries, while knowing and respecting the boundaries of others
- reversible, you can change your mind at any time
- a continuous process and ongoing conversation

Consent Definition for Children:

“Agreeing to do something because you want to”

“Other people agree because they also want to”

Consent Culture

- a culture in which the prevailing narrative is one of mutual respect, understanding and support
- no one is forced, pressured, tricked, manipulated or coerced into anything
- based on the belief that a person is the best judge of their own needs and wants

When we create consent culture, we respect the emotional, the personal, and the physical needs of others we interact with professionally, casually, intimately, and sexually.

A pillar of consent culture is autonomy:

- the freedom to make decisions, including decisions about your body, without any outside interference
- It challenges us to think about the power dynamics of our relationships and consider others' rights, needs, and wants, as well as our own

By creating and modelling a culture of consent we are creating an environment where children feel safe, empowered and have a voice.

Talking to Children about Body Parts

- Teach children the correct names for ALL body parts including their genitals. Use words such as, vulva, vagina, clitoris, uterus, ovaries, penis, scrotum, testicles, breasts, nipples... (practice alone if you cannot say these words out loud)
- Many people/parents/caregivers do not teach children the correct words - this may be because they are embarrassed, uncomfortable, scared, or they were never taught the correct words themselves
- Many benefits to teaching the correct words
- It is ok if children know other words - slang - for these body parts, as long as they also know the correct words

Teaching Body Safety

- Teach children “Your body belongs to you” - their entire body, not just their genitals and “you are in charge of your body”
- Could call genitals “middle parts” or “bathing suit parts” or “private parts”
- Teach children to listen to their gut/tummy feelings, their instincts
- Read sexual health books with children - many books that discuss body parts, consent, and body safety (booklist in resources)
- Believe children if they tell you someone touched them or made them feel uncomfortable. Tell them it was not their fault. Tell them you are not angry with them.

Teaching Body Safety

- Teach children to listen to their gut/tummy feelings, their instincts
- The more children trust their instincts and practice saying no in their day-to-day interactions, the more likely they are to say no when they are in danger
- Learning this early can benefit children when they are young and as they grow into adults

“We say what’s OKAY” series by Lydia Bowers, illustrated by Isabel, Munoz

Educate2Empower Publishing

Books and resources to empower children and help keep them safe

<https://e2epublishing.info/free-resources>

My Early Warning Signs

If I feel unsafe my body lets me know.

Here is how!

Hair feels like it is standing on end

Sweaty brow

Start to cry

Heart beats fast

Goosebumps

Feel sick in the tummy

Sweaty palms

Need to go to the toilet

Shaky all over

If I feel unsafe, I must tell a trusted adult on my Safety Network straightaway!

Wobbly legs

© Upload Publishing Pty Ltd
For more information go to www.e2epublishing.info

Teaching Body Safety

- No secrets! - teach children to talk about/tell you about secrets and ask for help - often people who harm children ask them to keep it a secret
- Instead of using the word “secret” at home, try using the word “surprise”
- Children often touch their “genitals/private parts” because it feels good, and they are curious
- Teach children it is not OK to touch “genitals/private parts” in public – this is something that should be done alone in places such as bedrooms and bathrooms*
- Do not shame children for this behaviour – it is not sexual when they are children, it is common behaviour

Why it is Important to Correctly Name Body Parts

1. It may prevent childhood sexual abuse.

Some sexual offenders avoid children who know the correct names for their genitals because it tells them the child has been educated about their body and is more likely to tell someone about the abuse.

2. It may end childhood sexual abuse more quickly.

Children who have been taught the correct names for their genitals are more likely to disclose abuse, are more likely to be taken seriously when they disclose and are more likely to be understood when they disclose, leading to a more positive outcome for the child (e.g., ending the abuse, getting support and/or counselling, abuser being charged)

Why it is Important to Correctly Name Body Parts

3. It helps children develop a healthy, positive, body image when their genitals are not something to be ashamed of.

When genitals are given a correct name, they are respected like other body parts. We don't call other body parts by funny or derogatory names. We also don't pretend other body parts do not exist. We make body parts unspeakable by not naming them.

4. It gives children power, as language is power.

The more language they have to talk about their body, the more empowered they are.

Why it is Important to Correctly Name Body Parts

5. It provides the necessary foundation for subsequent sexual health education about relationships, consent, puberty, pregnancy, birth control, STIs, etc.

6. It gives them the ability to talk to adults they trust, such as parents and health care providers, about concerns they may have such as itchiness, irritation and pain.

7. It gives them the ability to ask questions about their bodies using words everyone can understand. Questions and curiosity are good!

It is OK if children use the correct words for genitals at school or with other children?

Yes! Want to normalize this language.

Teaching Children Consent

- Just like adults have the right to bodily autonomy, so do children
- We all have the right to decide what we want to do with our bodies – who touches them, how they are touched, who sees them, how we move them...
- Some children are not comfortable with physical touch, especially children with some forms of neurodivergence
- By hugging, kissing, tickling and chasing children who have not said yes, they are being taught they do not have control over what happens to their body
- When adults touch children without asking and/or ignore the verbal or non-verbal 'no' of the child, children learn adults can touch them without permission and without their consent

Teaching Children Consent

- Use the word consent! Explain what it is.
- A child who understands consent is more likely to say no to someone who is touching them inappropriately or making them feel uncomfortable and tell a *trusted adult
- They are also more likely to have healthy, consensual, satisfying and pleasurable relationships throughout their lives if consent is taught early and becomes an expected part of their relationships
- They are also more likely to pass this expectation on to other children they interact with

Teaching Children Consent

- Teach how to both get consent and give consent
- Many ways to say yes and no*
- Ask children before you touch them, expect children to ask before they touch you (this will take time and consistent practice)
- Respect their answer if they say no, thank them for setting a boundary
- If it is not optional, explain to them why you need to touch them (e.g., need to wash their face, put on their bike helmet, braid their hair, hold their hand on the street etc.) and do not phrase it as a question
- Give them options if possible (e.g., would you like to hug Auntie, blow them a kiss or say good-bye?) make sure all options are realistic – this teaches respect for self and others *

Teaching Children Consent

- Asking children before touching them let's children know they are being listened to and respected
- Teaches children they have a voice and what they have to say is important and how they feel is important
- Try to be clear with your language, say what you mean, follow through with what you say
- By 18 months many children can understand “no” and respond somewhat appropriately

Consent for Kids

<https://youtu.be/h3nhM9UIJjc>

2 min 42
secs

Examples of Using Consent and Setting Boundaries

- May I pick you up? Would you like a hug?
- Please hold my hand while we cross the busy street.
- Please ask before jumping on my lap.
- She also likes to play with this toy, how could we share it?
- I bought us a new book; would you like to read it today or tomorrow?
- It sounds like they changed their mind, can you please check in and see how they are feeling.
- Remember I told you on Tuesdays I spend time with my friends.
- He looks upset, did you ask before eating one of his cookies?
- I have a video I would like us to watch today. Would you like a snack while we watch it?

Teaching Children Consent Using Pets!

Pets/animals communicate with body language and noises, but not words.

Talking about Feelings

- Give permission to talk about strong complex emotions (anger, shame, powerlessness, fear, sadness, guilt...)*
- Ask children to put themselves in another's shoes
- Margaret Atwood: "fiction teaches empathy"
read stories together
- Much of our communication is non-verbal

Useful skills:

- Ability to read facial expressions
- Ability to read body language
- Ability to be empathetic to others
- Understanding theirs and others' emotions

Modelling Consent

- Model how to give and get consent
- Entire community could/should model this behaviour – talk to your friends, family and communities about it
- Ask before taking a picture of someone, including children
- Ask before posting a picture of someone, including children
- Depending on child's age you can ask their parent/guardian/caregiver

Rejection

- We live in a world where people often do not take "no" for an answer
- People pester, push, pressure, bribe and manipulate to get what they want
- When a person is worn down over time and finally says "yes", this is not consent. The person pushing for a "yes" is disregarding the needs, boundaries, and autonomy of the other person and are instead choosing to act in their own self-interest

Politeness Conditioning

“When somebody asks you to touch them and you say no, it’s not okay for them to keep asking. It’s hard to keep saying no, but you have the right to do that.”

(Bonnie J. Rough, 2018, Beyond the Birds and Bees)

- Not taking no for an answer – taught in our society
- Wearing people down teaches to go against our instincts
- Pestering/pushing/pressuring – raises tolerance for being bothered, bullied, harassed
- Resistance becomes normalized
- Being taught to be polite while ignoring our own comfort and boundaries (politeness conditioning) leads to the normalization of sexual harassment, sexual assault and sexual violence

Co-view and have discussions
Media is very influential and often portrays non-consent

Communication is Key!

- Begin talking to children at a young age and continue these conversations*
- If you make consent and correct words for body parts, part of everyday conversation it becomes the norm and it becomes comfortable and expected
- Read books - or listen to them (many on YouTube), watch videos
- Talk to other caregivers/parents/people who work with children...
- Discuss emotions, explain emotions, normalize emotions
- Model consent in everyday activities
- Think about social media and what you post
- Role play scenarios with children, practice saying no, practice accepting no

Values Clarification Exercise

An opportunity to reflect on your values, beliefs, attitudes and biases.

RESOURCES

Found in Resource Section of SVPRO website – click on title

RESOURCES

Found in Resource Section of SVPRO website – click on title

CARE

References, Websites & Video Sources

Auteri, S. (Aug 2023). Cultivating Sex Positive Parents. [virtual Presentation] Sex Ed Lecture Series.

Blue Seat Studios (2016). Consent for Kids. [Video]. YouTube. <https://youtu.be/h3nhM9UIJjc>

Connecticut Alliance to End Sexual Violence (2021, Sept 15). 8 Ways to Teach kids about Consent and Healthy Boundaries. <https://endsexualviolencect.org/8-ways-to-teach-kids-about-consent-and-healthy-boundaries/>

Dillon, S. (2021, Mar 20). Teaching Consent to Children: 'The joke is where it starts and rape is where it ends'. <https://www.theguardian.com/society/2021/mar/21/teaching-consent-to-children-the-joke-is-where-it-starts-and-is-where-it-ends>

Elliott, M., Browne, K., & Kilcoyne, J. (1995). Child Sexual Abuse Prevention: What Offenders Tell us. Child Abuse & Neglect, 19(5), 579-594.

Fonte, J.A. (May 2023). Cultivating Bodily Autonomy for Children. [virtual Conference Presentation] Sexual Assault Centre (SAC) Statewide Training Conference.

Glover Tawwab, N. (2021). Set Boundaries, Find Peace: A Guide to Reclaiming Yourself. Piatkus.

The Good Man Project (2016, June 8). This is How You Teach Kids About Consent. Huffpost. https://www.huffpost.com/entry/this-is-how-you-teach-kids-about-consent_b_10360296

References, Websites & Video Sources

Kenny, M.C., & Wurtle, S.K. (2008). Toward prevention of childhood sexual abuse: Preschoolers' knowledge of genital body parts. In M.S. Plakhotnik & S.M. Nielsen (Eds.), Proceedings of the Seventh Annual College of Education Research Conference: Urban and International Education Section (pp. 74-79). Miami Florida International University.

Kenny, M.C., & Wurtle, S.K. (2008). Preschoolers' Knowledge of Genital Terminology: A Comparison of English and Spanish Speakers. American Journal of Sexuality Education, 3(4), 345-354.

Kenny, M.C., Capri, V., Thakkar-Kolar, R.R., Ryan, E.E., & Runyon, M.K. (2008). Child Sexual Abuse: From Prevention to Self-Protection. Child Abuse Review, 17, 36-54.

King, K. (August 2023). 7 Simple Steps to Preventing Child Sexual Abuse: Empowering Parents and Educators. [virtual Presentation] Sex Ed Lecture Series.

Martin, K., Verduzco Baker, L., Torres, J., & Luke, K. (2010). Privates, pee-pees, and coochies: Gender and genital labeling for/with young children. Feminism & Psychology, 21(3), 420-430.

Matthews, D. (2017, March 6). Call children's private parts what they are. Psychology Today. <https://www.psychologytoday.com/ca/blog/going-beyond-intelligence/201703/call-children-s-private-body-parts-what-they-are>

McGuire, Laura (2021). Creating Cultures of Consent: A Guide for Parents and Educators. Rowman & Littlefield.

My Early Warning Signs (2012). Educate2Empower Publishing. <https://e2epublishing.info/>

References, Websites & Video Sources

Pintor Carnagey, M. (2020). Sex Positive Talks to have with Kids: A guide to raising sexually healthy, Informed, empowered young people. Sex Positive Families. <https://sexpositivefamilies.com/book/>

Prikhidko, A. & Kenny, M.C. (2021). Examination of parents' attitudes toward and efforts to discuss child sexual abuse prevention with their children. Children and Youth Services Review, 121(1), 1-11.

Righttobeorg (2021). Bystander Intervention for Kids! Be a Super Ally with the 5Ds. [Video]. YouTube. <https://youtu.be/js5oGnS41PM?list=PL3wdAcMaXQVqFKg4lKvN3NqTBqz4tsscM>

Rough, B.J. (2018). Beyond Birds & Bees: Bringing home a new message to our kids about sex, love, and equality. Seal Press.

Simmons, L. (May 2023). Amaze. [virtual Conference Presentation] Sexual Assault Centre (SAC) Statewide Training Conference.

Thornhill, N. (Nov 2022). Make it about Race: An Intersectional Approach to Teaching Consent. [virtual presentation].

UNIVERSITY OF WATERLOO

YOU+WATERLOO

Our greatest impact happens together.