The 2012 James E. Curtis Memorial Lecture

Habits-of-Inequality Theory:
A New Approach to Sociology’s Oldest Problem

Monday, February 27, 5:00 p.m.
Tatham Centre, Room 2218 A/B
University of Waterloo
Presented by:
Dr. Lorne Tepperman
Department of Sociology
University of Toronto

Dr. Lorne Tepperman will deliver the Third Annual James E. Curtis Memorial Lecture. Dr. Tepperman received his PhD in Social Relations from Harvard University in 1970. Except for brief periods at Princeton and Yale Universities, he has spent the last forty years teaching and researching at the University of Toronto. For nearly two decades he collaborated with Jim Curtis on a variety of textbook projects. In the last ten years, he has worked mainly on topics related to gambling addiction and its impact on family life.
