Course Description

This course introduces students to the theory, principles, and practice of digital media design as they apply to a wide variety of communication contexts. Using design thinking, students will develop creative projects that integrate the needs of a variety of audiences.

Projects and assignments will span an introduction to digital photography, concept development, professional practice and the client/designer relationship, design principles, and bringing concepts to fruition. The focus of this class is to generate not only an understanding of what tools exist and how to use them but to also provide a foundation with which to contextualise those tools. This course will span both artistic and practical expression and will combine thinking and doing together, in order to create projects that focus on the thoughtful integration of digital image, text, and animation. The course is taught from a design perspective.

Course Goals & Learning Outcomes

This course will be directed towards design-focused production of digital media. Students will gain a deeper understanding of branding architecture, design-based workflow, client/designer relationships, visual communication strategies, as well as conceptual, contextual, and aesthetic principles of working in the field of design.

The aim of this course is to provide the foundation for a successful undergraduate education & subsequent career, allowing you to further develop your skills in the next several years. Upon completion of this course, students should be able to:

1. Use industry-standard digital tools to create content for print and screen
 - Students will learn the basics of the Adobe Creative Suite including Photoshop, Illustrator, and InDesign.
 - Class will contain technical explanations & there will be supplementary skills workshops
2. Understand the fundamentals of graphic design, including
 - The history of graphic design
 - The state of the art in graphic design
 - Theories of contemporary graphic design
 - Fundamental techniques of graphic design such as composition, layout, typography, colour, and style
 - The use of and meaning of symbols in the creation of a logo
3. Develop a strategy to take a project from brief to completion
 - We will use the theory and tactics of storytelling to translate ideas into visual designs
 - Students will hone their visual literacy in order to develop a personal style

4. Communicate complex ideas visually, verbally, and in written form

- Students will learn about the designer/client dynamic and needs of both sides of the process
- Learn how to read a client brief and how to communicate the elements of a design to a client
- Critiques of work focusing on positive, constructive feedback

Textbook, Required Readings, and Software

There are no required texts for this course. Your instructor will provide recommended readings where appropriate, and you may feel free to ask for additional readings. Your instructors highly recommend purchasing Design is Storytelling by Ellen Lupton to use for inspiration or reference throughout this course, but it is not required.

We will use Adobe Creative Suite software—specifically, Photoshop, Illustrator, and InDesign—for any examples or tutorials. The Creative Suite is unquestionably the industry standard. You can get a subscription at a student discount through the University's W Store. Students may use other apps such as Procreate. The use of Canva or any templates of any kind is forbidden. ALL WORK IN 101 MUST BE CREATED BY YOU.

Supplementary Tutorials

This course will use a cross-section of design software applications included in the Adobe Creative Suite. While some use of these programs may be covered during lectures, time restraints prevent comprehensive software lessons. Students are strongly encouraged to view the technical tutorials given by Greg McIntyre, as greater facility with these software packages leads to more confident content creation. Access to supplementary tutorials will be posted on LEARN. In addition, it is strongly recommended that you explore the courses supplied on LinkedIn Learning; the University pays for a subscription for LIL, so it is well worth your time.

Course Requirements and Assessment: Participation

GBDA 101 is a project-based class. There are no term papers or examinations in this course. Although projects must be completed individually, there will be many opportunities throughout the term to provide feedback to your peers and to discuss design concepts and ideas in class. Your active participation is integral to this course and is worth 10% of your final grade.

Projects & Exercises

GBDA 101 is divided into four major projects which will help you to develop a variety of design skills. You will be provided with a brief for each of the four projects, which will reflect real-world forms of communication (including vague direction from the client). Each exercise is designed to aid the student in the completion of the primary projects. All projects are due at 8:00 pm (EST) on the day in question. Projects will be due the day before class to ensure that you will be able to showcase your work during class.

Late Work

These assignments reflect real-world production: deadlines matter. Assignments submitted late without approved extensions will be subject to late penalties of 5% for the first 24 hours that the work is late, rising to 10% for each subsequent day. After a week, a mark of 0% will be assigned for the late work. Late penalties are not recoverable. If there are important circumstances that impact your submissions, you must tell us before the submission of the work, not afterwards.

Submission of Work

Follow the directives provided on your project outlines. Submit your files to the appropriate dropbox in LEARN in the appropriate format(s) and with the name specified. When in doubt label all files: GBDA101_lastname_firstname_project.

Tentative Course Schedule

You can find the course schedule here. This is a tentative timeline: the content of the lectures and order may change based on class progress and interest. Detailed week-by-week readings and assignments will be posted to LEARN. This class uses LEARN as the primary communication tool—reminders, updates, readings, and notes will be posted often. Students are expected to check LEARN frequently.

Please Note: This is a friendly reminder that you will not gain access to the online learning systems (LEARN) until your Registered Status on Quest for the term is “Fees Arranged.” Visit the Finance-Student Accounts website to find out how to become "Fees Arranged" for the term. If you submitted a payment or Promissory Note more than three days ago and you are not yet "Fees Arranged", please contact Student

Evaluation

Craft and Technique

- Does your assignment demonstrate control over craft and technique?
- How have you manipulated the tools to your advantage?
- Is there evidence of comprehension with regards to tools, technique, and process?

Elements of Design and Form

- Does your assignment consider the elements of design (line, shape, pattern, texture, colour, and value)?
- Have you considered the principles of composition? How does form relate to concept?

Experimentation

- Does your assignment demonstrate a willingness to experiment and take risks?
- Is there an aspect of innovation in terms of your approach?

Authenticity

- Does your design match the intended message?

What does my grade mean?

- A (80-100): This grade indicates exceptional work that, to varying degrees, demonstrates a thorough understanding of the issues presented in class. The work demonstrates a deep involvement on the part of the student and could stand on its own aesthetic terms outside of the context of a school assignment. Excellent work.
- B (70-79): This grade indicates notable work that, to varying degrees, shows that the student has understood the topic and has made every effort to fulfill the requirements of the assignment to the best of their ability. Good work.
- C (60- 69): This grade indicates, to varying degrees, satisfactory work. The work may be successful on one level, but it fails on another. Furthermore, the work may reflect a good deal of effort, but it does not adequately address the topic at hand. Acceptable work.

- D (50-59): This grade indicates, to varying degrees, barely adequate work. The work displays minimal effort and commitment on the part of the student and does not convey a sufficient understanding of the topic at hand. Poor work.
- F (33-49): This grade indicates, to varying degrees, insufficient or incomplete work. Failure.

Information on Plagiarism Detection

Students and faculty at the University of Waterloo share an important responsibility to maintain the integrity of the teaching and learning relationship. This relationship is characterized by honesty, fairness, and mutual respect for the aim and principles of the pursuit of education. Academic misconduct impedes the activities of the university community and is punishable by appropriate disciplinary action.

We reserve the right to use electronic means to detect and help prevent plagiarism. Students agree that by taking this course all assignments are subject to submission for textual similarity review by software (e.g., Turnitin.com or Grammarly). Assignments submitted to Turnitin.com will be included as source documents in Turnitin.com's restricted access database solely for the purpose of detecting plagiarism in such documents for five academic years. The instructors may require students to submit their assignments electronically to Turnitin.com or the instructor may submit questionable text on behalf of a student.

Please take note of the following: As a studio-based course, all work submitted for evaluation must be your own, made from scratch. You are NOT permitted to use templates, stock sources, or any online imagery. If the submitted work is determined not to be your own, the Academic Discipline Procedure of Policy 71 \(Student Discipline\) will be invoked

A note on copyright-free and Creative Commons: Resources available in the public domain that are identified as copyright-free or that fall under licenses from Creative Commons. Public domain is a term used for works that are not protected by copyright law. If an image is in the public domain, then you are allowed to use it—to copy it, to manipulate it and to distribute it. Works identified as Creative Commons allow varying degrees of use. In this case, the authors decide how you can use their images.

A student is expected to know what constitutes academic integrity to avoid committing academic offenses and to take responsibility for their actions. A student who is unsure whether an action constitutes an offense, or who needs help in learning how to avoid offenses (e.g., plagiarism, cheating) or about “rules” for group work/collaboration should seek guidance from the course professor, academic advisor, or the undergraduate associate dean. For information on categories of offenses and types of penalties, students should refer to Policy 71 \(Student Discipline\).
