

SPEAKER

DANIEL MANULAK, PHD

CANADA, APARTHEID, AND THE DEFENCE OF THE LIBERAL ORDER

From the late 1950s to the mid-1990s, Canadian policy-makers shared a remarkably similar world view that shaped their approach toward South African apartheid and the risks it posed to global race relations. Why did Ottawa take a leading role internationally in addressing an issue seemingly peripheral to its national interests?

Join author Daniel Manulak for a discussion and book signing exploring Canada's role in the struggle to end apartheid.
