

Arion Cheong is an assistant professor at California State University at Fullerton. Arion's research focuses on the application of data analytics in accounting and the managerial implication of information technology. His works have examined the effectiveness of cybersecurity risk disclosure, the interaction between employee loyalty and insider information leakage, and the economic impact of blockchain technology. He has advised numerous firms to adopt audit data analytics including the Brazilian Stock Exchange (B3) and AB InBev. He has published in Journal of Management Information Systems, Journal of Information Systems, and the Journal of Emerging Technologies in Accounting. Arion has taught a variety of classes including accounting data analytics, accounting information systems, and cybersecurity assurance.